LI HUNG CHANG.

China's Statesman is Now Our Guest.

Arrives This Morning in New York Harbor

And is Honored by a Grand Display of Warships and Commercial Craft.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Promptly at 8 o'clock this morning colors were hoisted on board the fleet of American warships at anchor off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, with the usual ceremonies, the band of the flagship New York playing the "Star Spangled Banner." Shortly afterwards the crews of all the ships were busily engaged in polishing and burnishing, oiling and cleaning, vigorously placing the finishing touches upon the fine naval display in all its glory in honor of Uncle Sam and preparatory to welcoming Li Hung Chang, the "Grand Old Man" of China, the statesman of many titles, in an appropriate manner.

Shortly after the announcement at 9 o'clock that the St. Louis was sighted east of Fire Island, throngs of people travelled across the ferries or by other routes to Fort Wadsworth, Fort Hamilton, Bay Ridge, Quarantine, Tompkinsville and other points from which the arrival and greeting of the distinguished guest of the nation could be witnessed to the best advantage. Other crowds flocked to the Battery and still others stationed themselves at an early hour in the vicinity of the American line dock, where the traveller was to land. It is doubtful if New York bay ever presented a grander sight than it did this morning, for, anchored there in stately strength, were eleven of the war ships of the new navy of the United States, the embodiment of grace and strength, of speed and offensive power.

The Chinese statesman at the review off Spithead, after he visited Queen Victoria, at Osborne, was treated to a fine display of warships, forty-seven ships, twenty-seven battleships and cruisers and twenty torpedo destroyers being there aligned for his inspection, but he never set eyes on a finer fleet than that commanded by Admiral Bunce today. Each vessel represented the very latest improvement in everything. This gallant fleet, swung in double column, en enclenon, to the flood tide at 10 o'clock, rams pointing seaward.

It was originally intended to take Li Hung Chang off the St. Louis at quarantine and convey him to some pier up town and nearer the Waldorf than the American line pier, which is down town, but the Chinese minister represented to General Ruger that the age of the Chinese statesman precluded any such feat of strength and agility as clambering from the St. Louis to the Dolphin, and so this feature of the program was abandoned.

On board the Dolphin with General Ruger were the Chinese Minister Yang and suite, the Chinese consul, a few specially invited guests and a representative of the Associated Press. It was decided to address the Chinese statesman as 'Your excellency," and so he will be officially termed during his stay in the United States.

Li Hung Chang's suite consists of about forty persons and he has with him about 300 pieces of baggage, some of them being of immense size. The suptuous coffin which he carried with him as a matter of precaution, has been sent back to China, via the Suez canal, which would seem to show that the traveler has no fear of dying before reaching his native land again.

Coming next to the great Chinese statesman in rank, of the party visiting the United States, is Li King Fong, or Lord Li, the adopted son of Li Hung Chang, who has been secretary of the Chinese legation at London and minister to Japan. Then comes Lo Feng Luh, the principal interpreter, who was educated in England, and was chief of the naval school at Tien Tsin. After him in rank come the four secretaries, Yuh Shh Mei, Lien Chun King, Lin Ho Shu and Di King Shu, the second son of Li Hung Chang. The attaches are next in rank; they are Chang Liu, Huk Ki, Sieh Pang Ho, Pah Hin, Huang Ching, Lo Chung Sung and Hung Chai Siang. Also accompanying Li Hung Chang is Dr. Irwin, an English physician, Major Von Hanneken, of Chino Japanese war fame, and a force of valets, cooks, etc.

The Dolphin steamed down the bay, with General Ruger and the guests on board, shortly after 10 o'clock, and at 10:30 she dropped anchor off Quarantine, awaiting the arrival of the St. Louis.

The St. Louis arrived at Quarantine at 12:30 and was immediately boarded by the government welcoming officers from the cruiser Dolphin, who extended to the Chinese statesman, in behalf of President Cleveland, a welcome to the United States.

Chinatown was ready early today to celebrate the landing here of H. I. C. M.'s ambassador. Red, yellow and green bunting, disguised the houses, mean, dingy, gray-brown tenements, into objects of lively, brilliant interest, while the Chinese of the quarter, dressed in their shimmering silks or bright hued cotton, stood in the doorways or on the fire escapes watching placidly the commotion in the streets. Their Chinese visitors from other parts of the town and other towns and villages hereabouts were scurrying hither and thither, seeking lodging or restaurant or paying calls.

The St. Louis slowly moved up the bay, surrounded by all kinds of gaily decorated craft and with the Dolphin quite near her, to the music of a tremendous chorus of steam whistles and continual fusilade of giant firecrackers, etc. As the St. Louis neared the American fleet, the first gun of the salute in honor of the Chinese visitor was fired from the flagship New York, gun by gun, until twenty-one shots had been fired. The New York was the only warship to fire a salute, but the other ships dipped their colors as the St. Louis passed. They presented a magnificent appearance and were watched with the greatest interest by the Chinese embassador and his suite from the position which they occupied on the port side of the upper deck of the American liner.

At quarantine it was learned that Li Hung Chang stood the voyage remarkably well and had not been at all sea sick. The St. Louis moved up the harbor in a sort of triumphal procession, greeted on all sides with the tooting of steam whistles and other salutes and eventually reached her dock at 1:30 p. m. But the party was not able to land until some time later, owing to the necessary delay in warping the ship alongside of her wharf. The vicinity of the dock was about as lively as the finish line on a yacht race day and with the America's cup at stake. All kinds of craft were dashing here and there, in everybody's way, but escaping accident by a series of miracles.

The yellow standard of China was loudly cheered by the crowds about the wharf as the bow of the big steamship neared the landing place of the American line and the Chinese party was received at the pier by the guard of honor of the marine and infantry and the immense crowd of people, which was with difficulty kept back from the approaches by a large force of police. The Chinese standard was hauled down from the American line steamer at 1:50 p. m., as the Chinese ambassador landed on the wharf and entered the carriages in attendance The first carriage contained the ambassador and General Ruger and in the next were Tao-Tai-Li, Major Von Hanneken and a member of the staff of General Ruger. In the third carriage was Lord Li and his wife, Loh-Fong-Loh and another staff officer.

After them came carriages containing the Chinese minister and the Chinese consul and their suits, accompanied by staff officers The procession left the pier headed by a detachment of the Sixth cavalry and having another detachment of the same regiment in its rear, the whole was preceded by a detachment of mounted police, and it moved away amid loud cheering. The route was to West street and Bowling Green, up Broadway to Fourth street, thence through Washington square and up Fifth avenue to the Waldorf. The route of the procession was guarded by police and densely packed with spectators. A quantity of bunting was displayed on all sides and among it the Chinese standard was continuously seen.

A MOTHER'S CRIME.

Killed Her Two Boys and Her Daughter

And Then Turned the Weapon Upon Herself With Fatal Results.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 28.—Neighbors who broke into the home of C. W. Green, traveling passenger agent of the Big Four railway, this forenoon, found the three children, two boys, aged respectively thirteen and four years, and a girl, aged nine, lying dead in bed. They had been shot and instantly killed as they slept. In another part of the house Mrs. Green, also dead, lay upon the floor, weltering in her own blood. The woman had apparently fired and killed her children, then dispatched herself, using a revolver. Mrs. Green had apparently suddenly become crazed in the night and risen and committed the terrible crime. She is said to have been addicted to morphine. Mrs. Green was thirty-five years old. Mr. Green, who is the traveling passenger agent for this territory for the Big Four railroad, left the city a week ago last Tuesday for a trip to Salt Lake City with Mr. Lynch, assistant passenger agent of that road.

Prominent Valparaiso Republicans Declare for Bryan and Silver.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Aug. 28.—A sensation was created in political circles today by the announcement that Loren Hixon, John McGillicuddy and James McGillicuddy, all prominent merchants, and Col. Adelbert Radker, Dr. D. J. Loring, Prof. William Hicks and Rev. Allen Lewis, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, all former republicans, of this city had declared for Bryan and free silver.

CAMPAIGN TOUR.

Democratic Presidential Candidate Among the People.

W. J. Bryan Starts Out for a Few Days' Speaking Tour of Northern New York.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 28.—In his Syracuse speech Wm. J. Bryan explained his campaigning tour by remarking that because few of the people had enough money this year to visit a presidential candidate it seemed only fair that the candidate should go to see the people. In pursuance to this policy Mr. Bryan left Buffalo by trolley this morning to begin a two days' campaign among the smaller cities of northern New York.

At Tonawanda there were gathered 200 or 300 people when the car stopped in the center of the town and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, standing on the platform, shook hands with a typical country crowd. Mr. Bryan spoke to them briefly, his voice in its huskiness showing the wear and tear of the week's work, and when the trolley moved off it was followed by three cheers for the next president." Mr. Bryan spoke as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—The Chicago platform, while it was written and adopted by the democrats of the west and south, does not raise any sectional question. It simply reasserts the democracy first taught by Thomas Jefferson and afterwards defended by Andrew Jackson and the democracy upon which the democratic party must always stand, unless it decides to abandon the principles which have been its principles from the beginning and substitutes the plutocracy that some have called modern democracy.

The Chicago platform simply reiterates those fundamental principles upon which our form of government must rest. The keynote of the Chicago platform is found in the declaration of independence, that all men are created equal, and that, therefore, no citizens have the right to appropriate to themselves the blessings that the Creator intends for all the people of this country. Laws should not be made so that the many will and the few enjoy the fruits of the toil of the many. That platform means that every man shall be defended in the enjoyment of that which he earns, but that no man shall be permitted to enjoy what somebody else has earned and which is taken from him by vicious legislation.

The reason they use abusive epithets and apply hard names to those who support that platform is because they know that the platform is a menace to the wrong doer, not the smaller wrong doer only but also to the larger transgressor who attempts to use the government as his instrument to wrong others.

I do not think it is going to require a great deal of talking in this campaign. We are not going to have any difficulty to find speakers. If we go out in any of the stores, the machine shops, the farm or to the men who work along the road we will find the men who know enough about the principles of this government to be able to discuss these questions and apply them to themselves. The great common people do not need any particular class to tell them what they shall do. They can think for themselves, and I trust that when November comes they will act for themselves. [Great applause]

During the morning ride Mr. Bryan gave to the Associated Press a statement of his views concerning the party outlook in the state of New York. Coming after his recent visits with Senator Hill, State Chairman Hinley, and minor party men in the largest cities of the state, all of which he has visited, the statement may be considered significant. Mr. Bryan said: "I am more than gratified with the demonstration of last evening. It far surpassed anything which I had expected. I am also pleased to find so unanimous a sentiment in favor of the endorsement of the action of the Chicago convention. From what I have seen in New York and from the sentiments expressed by members of the state organization, I am satisfied that the state convention will endorse the platform as well as the ticket. Some of the democrats may oppose parts of the platform, but it is the national platform and will be accepted as a whole."

During the brief stop in Niagara the Bryan party was taken on a special car of the Gorge railroad to Lewiston, a distance of several miles down the river. The road is built under the cliff on the American side and runs close by the rapids, commanding a fine view of the falls Mr. and Mrs. Bryan stood on the front platform and at Lewiston shook hands with a small party. After ascending the tower for a view of the falls they boarded a car for Nowelsville, near Medina, to speak at the farmers picnic.

CRISIS PAST.

Affairs in Zanzibar Assuming Normal Conditions.

Usurper Said Khalid Still Under German Protection, But He Will be Surrendered.

ZANZIBAR, Aug. 28.—The crisis here is regarded as ended. The new sultan, Hamoud Bin Mohammed Bin Said, is expected to follow the peaceful lines of his predecessor and it is understood that Great Britain does not intend to make any change in the existing form of government. The suggestion that the presence of the suppressed usurper, Said Khalid, at the German consulate, implies a political intrigue, is not credited here, and it is expected that Khalid will be handed over to the British officials so soon as the German consul receives the necessary instructions from Berlin.

Leaves the Choice of Place to the Ex-President, But Prefers Indianapolis.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, has telegraphed to ex President Harrison at New York, challenging him to a joint debate. The dispatch was sent from here this morning as the senator passed through at 11 o'clock from Pennsylvania to his home. The dispatch is as follows:

"Hon. Benjamin Harrison, New York City:

"I have just spent a week in Pennsylvania, speaking to many thousands. Your speech in New York last night attacked me specifically and I would be pleased to meet you in joint debate before a northern audience, preferably at Indianapolis. B R TILLMAN."

CALLING ON THE MAJOR.

Chicago, Cleveland and Columbus Will Send Delegations.

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 28.—Tomorrow promises to be one of the busiest days yet for McKinley. Five delegates are scheduled to arrive here during the day. The first delegation will be the commercial men from Chicago, who will be received about 10:30 a. m. Then will come the supreme lodge Knights of Pythias, from Cleveland, followed by the Lisbon, Ohio, farmers, and later by the German-American citizens from Cleveland, a large delegation, and the Workingmen's McKinley club, from Columbus, Ohio.

A committee of fifteen from the National Republican league reached here at 1:30 this afternoon from Milwaukee. They took dinner with Private Secretary Boyle, and will call on Major McKinley at 2:30 this afternoon, when John Goodeough, of Minnesota, will make a formal presentation. Tuesday next the editors of West Virginia will call. Major McKinley's deluge of telegrams of congratulations over his letter of acceptance continues unabated, while huge mail bags bring thousands of letters of the same nature. Six delegations will arrive tomorrow instead of five, as previously reported. The sixth delegation being the United Brethren church Ohio conference.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Dr. Thomas Gallagher, of New York, the Irish political prisoner, was released from Portland prison this morning in charge of an infirmary nurse. Tickets were taken for Waterloo railroad station, London, but it is believed that they will stop at Southampton, as it is understood that the United States embassy has booked a passage for Dr. Gallagher on the American line steamship St. Paul, which sails for New York tomorrow. Dr. Gallagher looked very pale and thin, was extremely weak and his hair has turned gray.

Robb for congress by populists and democratic fusion forces in the eighth congressional district; Frank Bailess for congress in the fourth Iowa district by the democrats.

Strike Ended.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—The great New Castle coal strike is ended. The decision of the strikers, according to Australian mail advices received by steamer, was reached on July 12 when a majority of the lodges decided to accept the master's terms. The miners appear to have submitted to the inevitable and at last accounts work was being fully resumed.

ARENA OF POLITICS

J. M. Robinson Endorsed by the Populists.

Republican Convention Held Tomorrow.

Interesting Contests for the Nominations—Meetings Held by the Democrats and Republicans.

The populists of this congressional district met in convention at Auburn yesterday and indorsed as their candidate for congress J. M. Robinson, of this city, the democratic nominee, who was nominated in April by the democratic congressional convention, which assembled at Kendallville, for the same position.

The Auburn convention was attended by populists from the different counties in the district. W. F. Francis, of DeKalb county, was made chairman, and H. H. Haines, of this city, selected as secretary.

After the transaction of the usual preliminary business, the convention took up the question of the nomination of a candidate for congress. There were two candidates, J. M. Robinson and C. F. Shonts, of this city, and the ballot resulted: Robinson, 74; Shonts, 25, and, on motion of Mr. Shonts, the nomination of Mr. Robinson was made unanimous.

A committee, of which Messrs. Kelley and Shonts are members, was appointed to notify Mr. Robinson of his nomination and to ask him to endorse the financial plank of the St. Louis populist convention. Before the adjournment of the convention the following resolution was presented and unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, By the Twelfth district people's party congressional convention, that justice to the people's party of Indiana makes it imperatively necessary that the democratic party of Indiana should place upon the democratic electoral ticket sufficient Bryan and Watson electors to give the people's party a fair proportion of the electors in accordance with the vote cast as compared with the democratic vote of the state in the election of 1894."

The convention selected the chairman and secretary of the convention to act, respectively, in that capacity for the district organization.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TOMORROW.

The republican county convention which assembles in this city tomorrow to nominate candidates for the various county offices will meet at Princess rink at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Unlike the usual republican county conventions of Allen, the one tomorrow promises to have a little of the spirit which characterizes the conventions of the democrats. There will be quite a contest for the nominations for the offices of sheriff, treasurer and prosecuting attorney. THE SENTINEL has already given the names of the candidates for each of these offices. There are two for prosecuting attorney and five for sheriff. There are also two candidates for tressurer, W. T. Jefferies, formerly city clerk, and A. R. McCurdy, of DeWald & Co. These contests will be animated, as the candidates have been hard at work at the task of building up their political fences.

M'KINLEY CLUB FORMED.

A meeting was held at Anderson's hall, in the Fifth ward, last evening for the purpose of organizing a McKinley ward club. The new organization starts out with a membership of nearly one hundred, and the following officers were elected: President, Col. C. B. Oakley; first vice president, J. W. Sale; second vice president, C. W. Orr; secretary, S. M. Holtzman; treasurer, P. L Potter; executive committee, Henry Hild, J. O. Brown, A. T. Lukens. Mr. Lukens was instructed to organize a Fifth ward glee club and regular meetings will be held each Thursday evening at places to be announced hereafter. On concluding the business Col. R. S. Robertson and Mr. Strass delivered addresses.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING

An enthusiastic democratic meeting was held last night at Coesse and it was largely attended. Speeches were delivered by Henry Colerick, W. H. Shambaugh, and J. H. Powers, of this city. Over 100 persons from Columbia City attended. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Garrison, who has been a life long republican.

WILL GO TO TOLEDO.

Quite a large number of democrats from this city will go to Toledo next Wednesday to hear Wm. J. Bryan, the democratic candidate for president, who speaks there in the evening. The Wabash will run a special train, leaving this city at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and starting on its return trip at 11 o'clock.

STEEL BILLET POOL.

It Holds Its Second Monthly Meeting at Cresson.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 28.—The meeting of the steel billet pool, otherwise the American Bessemer association, which was scheduled for this city, was suddenly changed to Cresson and it is now in session there. The reason for the change is said to be the desire to avoid the importunities of the metal brokers for certain changes. As this is the first month that the pool has been in actual operation the meeting is regarded as important. Considerable basic open hearth steel has been sold by members of the pool at prices lower than the pool price of bessemer, and it is said that prices for basic open hearth will be fixed, which will be higher than for bessemer steel. The allotment basis will also be changed from billets to ingots. While some members favor lower prices, no reduction is expected.

SHUMAN'S CASE.

Defendant Appears With His Attorney for Trial.

Prosecuting Witness Sick and Case Continued—A Wayward Girl—Police Notes.

The preliminary trial of Frank Shuman was set for this morning, but owing to the sickness of A. D. Craig, the prosecuting witness, the case was postponed indefinitely.

Young Shuman appeared in court with his attorney, J. B. Harper, and will probably fight the case.

The charge against Shuman is that of receiving stolen goods, a watch owned by A. D. Craig having been pawned there, after notice had been served upon him not to receive the same.

SCRAMBLING FOR FOOD.

The Victims of the Ontonogan Fire Act Badly.

Make a Rush Upon the Provisions and Clothing and Making a Call for Troops Necessary.

RICKLAND, Mich., Aug. 28.—More or less trouble has been experienced at Ontonagon, Mich., over the distribution of provisions, clothing, etc., and is reported that the sheriff has asked the governor of Michigan to place at his disposal a company of troops in order to quell any further outbreaks. It is not believed, however, that there will be anything like a riot. There are still about 1,600 of the distressed people who are in need of aid. The remains of Mrs. Pick were removed from the ruins last evening. It is not believed that more than three or four perished in the fire.

Miss Maude Merillat very pleasantly entertained last evening at tea in honor of Miss Lenore Igou, of Galion, Ohio. Miss Igou has been the guest of Miss Irma Medsker for the past two weeks. She will return to her home Saturday.

Huntington Democrat: "Miss Rebecca Swayne and Miss Jennie You, of Fort Wayne, came to Huntington on their wheels Wednesday and are the guests of Miss Ethel Elvin. Miss You's father, who is organizer of Periclean lodges, will be here Friday."

A balloon was sighted on its westward course over the city at 1 o'clock this afternoon and was seen by hundreds who were curious for an explanation of its presence. Field glasses were brought out and the discovery made that it was only a paper affair, and later it proved to have been sent up from the vicinity of Barr street.

Should a settlement be effected with the creditors of Val Gutermuth's cloak house, as now seems probable, Mr. Gutermuth may decide to engage in the same business on a smaller scale and in a different location. Judge Alden, the trustee, still has charge of the store and is conducting it for the benefit of the creditors. An adjustment is expected soon.

Rev. George Johnson, financial agent of Northwestern college and Union Biblical institute, at Naperville, Ill., will preach tonight at the Bethel church of the Evangelical association, corner Clinton and Holman streets, in the interest of said institutions. The address will be in English. Let every member be present, and bring your friends with you.

HOUSES RANSACKED

Many Valuable Goods Are Stolen.

Gang of Professional Thieves Operating In This City.

Residence of William Orrock Robbed of Many Costly Articles—Ernst Kampe's House Entered.

Two residences were broken into by burglars last night and the work was that of professionals. A very complete job was accomplished at the residence of William Orrock, 466 Calhoun street, which leaves no traces of amateur thievery. It is plainly the methodical raid of the most dangerous class of household thieves.

William Orrock is a traveling lumber merchant whose business takes him out of the city a good deal of the time. He was absent yesterday. Late yesterday afternoon MRS Orrock and children went to visit her mother, Mrs. Bond, and did not return home until this morning. Upon entering the house, Mrs. Orrock made the discovery that burglars had been at work during her absence, ransacking the rooms upstairs and down and leaving the house in such a state of confusion that it will take weeks to restore it to a normal state of order.

Many valuable articles were stolen, among them a gold watch, an old fashioned silver watch, a 38-calibre revolver, a solid gold Caledonian medal and $6 in money. MRS. Orrock had taken with her all other cash there was in the house and thus frustrated the chief plans of the thieves, as it was evident that they were after money above anything else. Many valuable goods, such as silverware and ornaments, were left behind.

The extent of the loss is not known and will not be until Mr, Orrock's return home tomorrow.

ANOTHER ONE.

The residence of Ernst G. Kampe, at 18 Union street, was entered by burglars last night, and, although the house was ransacked, no articles of value have yet been missed.

The thieves were probably frightened away. Several suspicious characters have been seen on the west side the past few nights and a detective has been detailed to investigate and arrest parties seen loitering about.

WHILE ON A VISIT

She left some months ago for Vevay Park to visit her uncle, then being in the full enjoyment of health. A few weeks ago she was stricken with typhoid fever which terminated fatally last night.

The remains will be brought home for interment.

Peter Prier, who was killed Wednesday night, was a member of St. Annes society, and arrangements will be made today to give him a decent burial.

The funeral of Mrs. Franzika Geye, widow of Henry Geye, will take place Saturday at 2 o'clock from St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Captain J. B. White, a Scotchman and an ardent advocate of Scotland's rights, is disposed to find fault with American newspapers in general and Fort Wayne papers in particular for the misuse of the word "England" when Great Britain is meant. Several years ago the North American United Caledonian association held its meeting in Chicago, and, among other resolutions adopted was one calling the attention of the press to the practice. The Caledonians argued that, while it may be unintentional, any reference to Great Britain by using the word 'England" was an insult to the Scotch people, whose country formed no insignificant part of Great Britain. These resolutions were printed in circular form and THE SENTINEL acknowledges the receipt of a copy, together with a note from Captain White calling attention to the matter.

C. D. Gaylor, of Wagner street, was driving a young spirited horse on Spy Run avenue last evening, when the animal became frightened and ran away, through the carelessness of another driver, who was on the wrong side of the road. Mr. Gaylor was thrown from the wagon, alighting on his head and receiving several bad wounds on the forehead and back of one ear. The man was taken to his home, where his injuries were attended to.

Anna is of the family of Abraham Sowers, living near the "Bootjack," all of whom have had considerable notoriety in police circles.

JOHN B. RYAN.

He Wasn't Robbed But He Thought He Was.

When Deputy Sheriff John B. Ryan got out of bed this morning and found his vest missing, he thought he had been robbed of his watch and a roll of money. He was looking around all morning among the pawn dealers for his watch, but about noon he received a telephone message from home saying that his vest was found in the wardrobe, with money and watch safe. His little sister in gathering up her clothes from the floor had unintentionally wrapped up John's vest in them and thrown the whole bundle into the wardrobe.

The Gist of the Question.

It is the right to use either metal and the fact that the other metal is accessible and may be used that constitutes the principal merit of bimetallism. There is a calamity when one metal goes out of circulation if it is the only metal the law has provided for use as primary money. But there is no calamity on one of the metals going out of circulation if the other metal is accessible, the mints open to its free coinage and the people have the option to use it.

Gold is now out of circulation. There is no gold among the people. It is cornered in the bank vaults. It is leaving us to go to Europe to pay $250,000,000 annually as interest on our gold debts authorized by the act of 1873. Under the gold standard it is only a question of time when all our gold will leave us. We produce about $60,000,000 a year and are sending $250,000,000 a year to Europe as interest on debts of ours held by foreigners. The gold being shipped back to us is borrowed gold that is increasing our gold debt to Europe and intensifying the situation. It means in the future more gold must be annually shipped to Europe to pay our increasing gold interest. It means that we have committed ourselves to an erroneous financial system, and the longer it lasts the greater our suffering must be in the end.

The gist of the financial question is this: Men who deal in money are interested in making the property they deal in more and more valuable. This is the natural instinct in dealers in any property.

The money dealer understands this principle, and knowing that money is made by law he has gone to where the law is made and caused the destruction of one-half the money of the world. He is a dealer in money. It is the property that he studies. When he makes his money so valuable that it will buy more and more of your property and mine, he is the gainer. When the farmer's wheat exchanges for less and less money, the farmer grows relatively poorer than the man who owns the money. The unfortunate circumstance that adds additional gravity to the situation is that the money deals in a property upon which all civilization is depending. It is the blood of civilization in which he deals and when he absorbs it he strangles civilization. When he depletes the arteries of commerce by hoarding about him this blood of civilization—society, arts, commerce—civilization itself is affected. Free coinage of silver will relieve the strain on gold and break the grip of the money lender.

Value of the Silver Dollar.

All the assertions of the gold contractionists to the contrary, our silver dollar is worth just as much beyond the borders of the United States as the gold dollar. In Europe our silver dollar would not find ready acceptance in payment of purchases but even so, our gold coins would be accepted with reluctance. Indeed, outside of the financial centers, neither gold nor silver dollars would find acceptance at all.

Without the stamp which makes our silver dollar in every way the equal of our gold dollar in debt-paying and purchasing power, the 371¼ grains of pure silver which it contains is worth, at this time, but fifty-three cents in gold. So if melted down so that this stamp is effaced, our silver dollar loses nearly one-half its value. The same amount of bullion remains, but the silver as bullion is worth forty-seven cents less than the same amount of bullion as coin. But the fact that the weight of silver bullion in our silver dollar is worth but fifty-three cents in gold does not cause our silver dollar to lose any part of its value, much less forty-seven per cent, on passing beyond the borders of the United States.

The purchasing power of the silver dollar is equal to that of the gold dollar, and so long as this is so, the silver dollar will keep its value as the equal of the gold dollar, whether at home or abroad. No one will sell the silver dollar abroad for less than the gold dollar, and the foreigner will be willing to pay just as much for our silver as for our gold coin so long as the silver dollar, if sent to America, will buy just as much of cotton, wheat, etc., as gold.

That our silver dollar is worth forty-seven cents more than the weight of silver bullion that it contains, while the bullion value and coin value of our gold coin are exact equivalents, is due solely to the fact that privileges of mintage that are granted to gold are denied to silver. Our mints being open to the free coinage of gold into full legal tender coin, gold bullion is the equivalent of gold coin. The owner of gold bullion has the right to take it to the mints and receive in return therefor gold coin, weight for weight, with the bullion deposited, and without other charge than the cost of assaying and refining the metal.

In short, if gold is deposited at the mint of the required fineness of coinage, that is nine parts pure gold to one of alloy, there will be returned to the depositor, and free of all charge for mintage, gold coin, or its equivalent at the rate of one dollar for every 25 8 grains of standard gold deposited. Such being the case, it is clear, gold bullion must be the equivalent of gold coin, and that 25 8 grains of standard gold, the weight of standard gold in the eagle, must have the same value as the eagle, whether coined or not. The government being required to convert gold bullion into gold coin free of charge, it is obvious no one will sell gold bullion for less than its coinage value, i. e., for less than one dollar for 25 8 grains of standard, or 23.22 grains of pure gold. It is also obvious that gold bullion can never command a price materially above the coinage value, for no jeweler or manufacturer having use for gold in the arts will pay materially more than one dollar for 23 22 grains of pure gold. Rather than do so he will obtain the necessary gold by melting down gold coin. Indeed, it is in this way that much of the demand for gold, industrially, is now supplied.

So it is that through the privileges of free mintage extended to the owner of gold bullion, gold bullion and gold coin have always the same value and must always have the same value so long as gold bullion is convertible by the government into coin without expense to the owner. Extend the same privileges to the owner of silver bullion and at once the same relation will be established between silver bullion and silver coin, and the difference between the value of silver as bullion and silver as coin will at once disappear. That it now exists is due simply to the fact that the coinage of silver is restricted.

That the silver dollar has appreciated with gold and kept at a par with the gold dollar is due solely to the fact that as money it is just as serviceable as gold. It has the same debt paying power and the same purchasing power as gold, and consequently it has maintained the same value. The impression held by many and so ardently fostered by the gold press, that the parity of the silver dollar with the gold is only maintained through the redemption by the government of silver dollars in gold coin on demand is absolutely without foundation. So is the assertion that it has been found impossible to put the silver dollars coined under the Bland and Sherman acts into circulation, and that three hundred and seventy odd million of silver dollars are piled up uselessly in the treasury because the people do not want them, and will not keep them in circulation. As a matter of fact, this silver forms the basis of much the larger part of the currency that we use in our daily transactions, and nine-tenths of these so called useless silver dollars are now really in circulation in the shape of silver certificates.

GOLD SHIPMENTS.

How the United States Can Stop Them.

(Written for THE SENTINEL.)

Who can think of Thomas Jefferson, of Thomas H. Benton, of Andrew Jackson, and other founders of the democratic party, without thinking at the same time of "gold and silver" in the coinage of the United States? Either is sure to recall the other. Who that lived in Benton's time, can forget his picture of the gold and silver coins that would be seen through "interstices of silken purses" of the people when once bank notes should be banished from the land, and "gold and silver" money should take their place? Why, it is to this idea of Thomas H. Benton—("Old Bullion," as nicknamed in derision)—of "gold and silver" as basis of the national coinage, that the introduction of "the sub-treasury system" in our finances is due. Little did Benton think or imagine that in less than fifty years after his death, this same sub-treasury system would become the main instrument of international exchange for all the world, for collection of gold coin and bullion and its distribution among the national treasuries and banking houses of Europe? And this function of collecting and distributing the gold of the world must continue to be the leading function of the sub-treasuries in New York, Boston and San Francisco, until the law of congress that gives to the government the right of option to pay current demands in gold or silver coin, at discretion, unless otherwise provided in the contract, shall be revived in the conduct of the finances. The restoration of this lost government option to pay current demands in gold or silver coin, at discretion, is all that is needed to stop the shipping of gold from New York to Liverpool and London, and to turn the tide of such shipments the other way. Old time democrats will recall the picture of Robert J. Walker, in his famous Texas letter in 1844, of the "time when New York shall wrest from Liverpool and London the trident of the ocean." That time has now come, if we can muster pluck and courage enough to compel those who administer the national finances, to exercise the government option to pay current demands in gold or silver coin at discretion, unless otherwise provided in the contract. This question is now on, and is to be decided by vote of the people in this election, viz: whether the government shall rule its own finances at its own option and discretion, or whether these finances shall be ruled by the option of individual creditors. It is but the question of the right of national self defense, in another form. Without this right of option, and this safe measure of discretion in the conservation and control of the revenues, the government may without warning, be prostrated to the ignominious level of that of Mexico, because of its inability to keep its gold revenues for its own use, rather than that of European treasures and bankers.

Restoration of this lost option, together with that of the free coinage of silver, may be set down as the twin issues of the pending canvass and campaign of the people. Either of these two would be great achievements, but both of them together could not fail to make a swelling tide of prosperity.

If, as has been said of Alexander Hamilton and his greatest public work, (his draft of the act of congress that established the treasury system of the United States in 1792), "He touched the prostrate form of public credit," and it sprang at once into life and vigor; so with equal truthfulness shall it be said of William J. Bryan in 1897, his touch of the treasury and its finances roused the corpse of public confidence from its long sleep of death, and gave it strength and vigor to return to the ways, means and methods of "gold and silver" coinage, provided by the constitution. Hamilton was but thirty-six years old in 1792 and Bryan thirty-six in 1897—both of them but boys as compared by age with some of the venerables who now clamor for "sound money," with no definite idea of what sound money is.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Aug, 28, 1896

The Crop That Never Fails.

Drought or flood, cold or hot, one crop never fails. It is the crop of manuscripts that pour into the offices of newspapers and publishers. Midsummer dullness or midwinter inertness cannot stop them.

On an average perhaps one manuscript in 20 of the great loads that are dumped before editors is worth publishing. That would certainly be a liberal estimate. An odd coincidence, too, is found in the fact that the ones least worth reading are the ones that are the most slovenly looking and illegible.

A large proportion of community seem to have imbibed the notion that they can write for publication and write well enough to be paid for it. They are mistaken, at least all but about one in a hundred are mistaken. The American people ought all to be well educated and have practice in composition sufficiently to write well enough for publication if necessary. But they should not practice on patient and long suffering editors. They should wastebasket their maiden efforts at home.

The only person who should write is the one who has something to say. If in preparing his manuscript he thinks much of the money he expects to get for it and nothing at all of the message he has to convey in print, it is a sure sign that individual was never intended for a writer.

The steel frame umbrella is now the thing, and nobody who thinks himself anybody in the fashionable world would be without one. It is such a very close roller that it commends itself especially to the high roller of society. But it has its drawbacks. If the high roller should be carrying his steel frame close roller in the vicinity of an electric light wire or trolley wire and should touch with the steel point of his umbrella the wire, he would receive a terrible shock and might even lose his life. Accidents such as this have happened. While we need not abandon our close roller umbrella on this account, it is very necessary for us to look out where we set the point of it.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 28.—The game was a fine contest, which Washington won chiefly because of Dinsmore's fine work in the box. NOTES

Huff has asked for his release.

"Tony" Esterguest, Fort Wayne's new third baseman, is said to be all right.

A minor league umpire has secured judgment for back salary. This is the first instance on record where the grievance of an umpire was recognized.

Fort Wayne has lost less games than any other team in the Inter State league. In both series Toledo has played eleven more games than any other team.

A plaintive wail comes up from New Castle. The rooters that once rooted in that town root no more. The team executed a performance on the chutes and is now playing to a grand stand and bleechers filled principally with atmosphere. In fact, the attendance is almost as light as it is at Toledo, and the visions of a berth in the Western league have turned to nightmares.

MADE AN ASSIGNMENT.

The Elgin Sewing Machine and Bicycle Company.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The Elgin Sewing Machine and Bicycle company has made an assignment in favor of Dewitt Campbell. Assets are estimated at $150 000, and liabilities at $100,000. The concern, up to a week ago, employed 300 hands. The failure is attributed to the action of the employes to whom the company, it is said, is indebted to the extent of $4 000. The employes threatened attachment proceedings and the assignment was forced by this, so the officers say.

to those suffering from catarrh or the thousands subject to severe attacks of cold in the head, will not be amiss if a sure remedy can be offered. Ely's Cream Balm has become a favorite in all sections of the United States, because of its effectiveness. Your cold in the head will be quickly relieved by it, and the severest attack of catarrh will yield to, and be perfectly cured by a thorough treatment. Catarrh is not a blood disease, but an inflammation of the passages of the nose and throat, due to climatic changes.

A JUNIOR REPUBLIC.

UNIQUE COMMUNITY AT FREEVILLE, NEW YORK STATE.

A Government for and by the Children—The Tenement Houses of Darkest New York Supply the Citizens—How They Govern Themselves.

(Special Letter.)

A VISIT to the Junior Republic at Freeville, N. Y., is sufficient to demonstrate to the most skeptical mind the usefulness of Wm. R. George's original scheme of allowing little girls and boys from the lowest tenement house districts in New York to try the experiment of governing themselves.

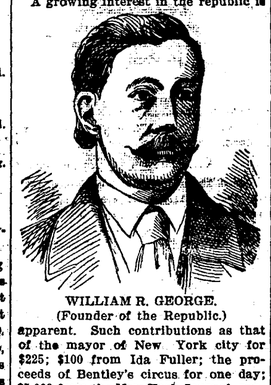
Such a political economist as Jeremiah W. Jenks has stated that he feels convinced that it is an experiment which is not merely profoundly interesting, but also very valuable from the scientific point of view. Furthermore, that Mr. George is conducting the plan on what seems to be a sound educational basis and he hopes that the republic can be allowed to develop naturally along the lines on which it has run so far.

It has passed the experimental stage and is the most practical scheme which has yet been devised for helping the poorer classes. It teaches the children respect for themselves and respect for law, the value of money, and how to earn it. If one visits the republic with the idea that it is a toy republic one becomes quickly undeceived upon an introduction to it. The children, ranging between the ages of twelve and seventeen, are in dead earnest. They literally govern themselves. They have their own legislature and make their own laws. Provided the new-comers do not like the laws, Mr. George merely says, "Change them, then, if you do not like them." And they proceed to change them in the usual way. What could be better than such an opportunity to study the government of their country upon which they are endeavoring to model their own. They return to their homes with a far greater knowledge of law than has been acquired by their parents during their whole lives.

Up to this period of its development Mr. George has found it best to keep the power of veto in his own hands, but so admirably have the miniature men and women, prepared their bills that seldom has their chief executive been compelled to prevent enactment of any measures passed by the legislative body, and upon a recent visit it was learned that even so important a position as the presidency was to be turned over to the boys this summer. "Senators" and members of the house and congressmen were "running" for office very much in the same manner as their elders do. No such perplexing problems as the present financial one, however, agitates their minds. Their bullion is tin, and they have a single American standard which they coin themselves. And it goes a long way. For if one takes twenty-five cents of American money to their bank, one receives in return two dollars in tin money which is just eight times greater than ours. It is somewhat startling to hear a youngster narrate to his comrades the sale of a pair of chickens for twenty dollars until one has been let into the intricacies of their money system.

Some of the children earn as much as ninety cents a day, sufficient to enable them to save by the end of the season an amount that will buy clothes enough with which to supply their families through the winter. These clothes are contributed by surrounding towns, as well as food and furniture, all of which, in addition to money, they are still much in need of.

A growing interest in the republic is



WILLIAM R. GEORGE.

apparent. Such contributions as that of the mayor of New York city for $225; $100 from Ida Fuller; the proceeds of Bentley's circus for one day; $5,000 from the New York Journal, provided $15,000 are raised, indicate faith in a plan which is something more than merely utopian.

It has been stated that so well has Mr. George established this little republic that his work is practically done there, and he could with propriety transfer himself to other regions, multiplying little republics all over the country. But his presence is surely an inspiration to these little people to whom he has greatly endeared himself and among whom he feels it best for the present to live.

As yet the republic is in a crude condition. They own about forty-nine acres of land. Most of this is for farming purposes. They have a few tents and slightly constructed buildings, which the children have dignified with the names "Delmonico's," "Sherry's," the "Waldorf," etc.—hotels which are managed solely by the children.

A most interesting feature of their life is the way in which they punish their offenders. They have a prison modeled after Sing Sing. Mr. George receives many letters containing the inquiry, "Are not the punishments meted out to the culprits too severe?" To which he invariably responds with a most emphatic "no." What are the nature of the crimes for which the boys are punished? Chiefly profanity, stealing and cruelty to animals. These cases are all tried in a court with a boy judge. When an act has been repeatedly indulged in, as in the case of one incorrigible who was twenty-nine times imprisoned, the verdict is three days with a diet of bread and water and a hard board to sleep upon. For most of the boys one or two experiences of that sort are sufficient to inculcate the lesson that obedience is demanded. Upon the release from prison of one boy he exclaimed to Mr. George, "Well, if Sing Sing is like that I don't intend to get there."

There is no pauper class to be dealt with, for if the children refuse to work they must starve. It has been satisfactorily noted that they invariably prefer to work. The whole field presents to the political economist such problems for study as arise and are suggested by a small area and a population living within it. The expressions on the faces of the children themselves point clearly to success.

SECOND WAR WITH FRANCE.

The Grand Duchess and Some Newspaper Extracts.

The rapidity with which France was repairing the disasters of the war and the ease with which she met the financial obligations fr imposed on her astonished Europe and perturbed the statesmen at Berlin, says the Quarterly Review. Her military force was being judiciously reconstructed and it seemed also as if the calculations of Prince Bismarck, as regards the constitution of her internal government, might be falsified. The German chancellor desired to see established what a Russian diplomatist happily described as a republique dissolvante. Notwithstanding his efforts to bring this result about and the impracticable character of the Comte de Chambord, which rendered the restoration of monarchy for a time impossible; there were indications that a stable system of government would be founded, which would enable France to recover a strong position in the community of nations. Prince Bismarck was resolved this should not be, and suddenly, in May, 1875, Prince Hohenlohe, the present chancellor of the German empire, who was then ambassador in Paris, appeared at the French foreign office and asked for explanations regarding the scheme for the reconstruction of the French army. The Duc de Broglie, in his interesting account of the embassy of M. de Gontaut-Biron to Berlin, describes the consternation which followed the attempt to provoke another quarrel with France. Another war seemed inevitable. England and Russia interfered to prevent it. Prince Bismarck could easily have disregarded the remonstrances of both. England would certainly not take up arms so he paid no attention to her representations and Russia would have thought twice before incurring the hostility of Germany in view of coming events in the Balkan peninsula. The fact, though not generally known, is that the greatest influence in preventing war was that of the grand duke of Baden. While the relations with France were becoming complicated the Emperor William happened to be staying at the Meinau, the seat of the grand duke of Baden, on the Lake of Constance. One morning the grand duchess, who was the emperor's daughter, came into her father's study and showed him a number of extracts from the press. He perceived at once that the country was drifting into war, and, after a consultation with his son-in-law, who was strongly opposed to provoking a war which, however successful for the moment, would have been disastrous to the name and character of Germany, the aged monarch went off that very evening to Berlin and Prince Bismarck had to beat a retreat.

BRAKEMAN MARRIED.

E. J. Martin Takes Unto Himself a Bride.

A "Bobrding Car" in a Work Train Destroyed—The Norfolk and Western Abolishes Some High Offices.

Last evening at 8 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Carrey, 294 East Creighton avenue, occurred the marriage of E. J. Martin and Miss Elida May Carrey, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. T. Loring, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. After the marriage ceremony, the bride, groom and guests sat down to one of the most delicious feasts it was ever their lot to participate in. The married couple received a great number of presents, all useful and very appropriate. Mr. Martin is a brakeman, employed on the western division of the Pittsburg road. He and his bride will for the present, at least, reside with the parents of the latter.

FREIGHT BUSINESS IMPROVING

The Pittsburg, the Wabash and the Grand Rapids officials each report an improvement in freight business. How long this improvement will continue is, of course, an uncertainty, but THE SENTINEL sincerely hopes it will be permanent. The Wabash had five eastbound and three westbound freights through this city last night, and the Pennsylvania had seven eastbound and three westbound trains during the night. This does not include the local freights. For a dull season this is considered good business. When grain and coal are moving briskly it is not an uncommon thing for the Pittsburg to have twenty-eight or thirty trains over the road in one day.

DIDN'T USE MORPHINE.

A bottle of patent medicine figured conspicuously recently in a case wherein a Wabash engineer was charged with taking morphine pills while out on his run. The engineer and his fireman were not friendly and to "get even" for an imaginary wrong the latter had filed the above charge against the former. The next day the engineer was summoned before an official and charged with being addicted to the morphine habit. He declared he had never taken a dose of the drug in his life and asked who was his accuser. When told that it was the fireman, the engineer reached in his pocket and drew out a bottle of Munyon's Catarrh Cure, with the remark, "Those are the only morphine pills I ever use." The box of medicine was taken to the Peru hospital and analyzed by the company's physician, after which the engineer was exonorated.

BRIEF MENTION.

Nickel Plate Fireman Charles Davidson is enjoying a few days' recreation.

J. N. Cook, Nickel Plate brakeman, has resumed work after a few days' rest.

O. L. Wilmot, stenographer at the Bass offices, is back from the St. Clair flats, where he spent a week's vacation.

Samuel Grable, Nickel Plate yard master, has returned from Rome City, where he spent ten days very pleasantly.

Next week the electric works will ship two 6,000 light dynamos, one to California and the other to Sault Ste Marie.

The Bass blacksmith shop will be closed tomorrow to allow some much needed repairs to some of the machinery.

George Hannan, of Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory, who was sick for several days, returned to work this morning.

E. B Shankey has resigned as superintendent of the Salem branch of the St. Louis and San Francisco, and the office has been abolished.

John Leonard, a clerk at the Kerr Murray works, will enjoy his annual vacation next week and will go to Mt. Rose to visit his relatives.

A. C. F. Wichman, manager of the Anthony Wayne Manufacturing company, went to Indianapolis this morning on business for the firm

John J. Bauer, of the electric works, is a sufferer from hay fever and if the malady grows in severity he may seek relief in northern Michigan.

Painter Charles Habacher, of the Pennsylvania shops, and his wife left this morning for Monticello, Ind., to spend a few days with relatives.

Contrary to the usual practice, the Pittsburg shops will be in operation Saturday, much to the satisfaction of the men who are employed therein.

Charles Longfield, of Cincinnati, who was the guest of Gus Meyers for a few days, has returned home. The trip to and from this city was made on a bicycle.

Charles Rice and Peter Conrey, who were sick and off duty two weeks, were able to resume their respective places in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop this morning.

The excursion of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton to Mackinac on Tuesday was a success. The train was run in three sections, and carried 1,482 excursionists.

E B Thomas, president of the Erie lines, has sent out a general order requesting heads of departments to curtail expenses wherever possible without injury to the service.

The absentee list at the Pittsburg blacksmith shop this morning contained the following new names: Fred Engelking, H. H. Robinson, M. R. Hardendorf and William Hayes.

A special over the Big Four on Sunday made the run from Louisville to Anderson, 140 miles, in three hours and twenty minutes making six stops at railroad crossings and to take water.

It is stated that the citizens of Marion, Ohio, have offered the Erie people twenty five acres of ground and $100 000 in cash to make Marion, instead of Galion, the division terminal

It is probable that early in September a meeting of the western roads will be called to consider the practicability of advancing freight rates, more particularly between the Missouri river and Chicago.

James C. Patterson, a popular and well known passenger conductor on the Lake Erie and Western railroad, died suddenly at Michigan City yesterday at noon. His death was caused by paralysis.

Stephen Kennedy, passenger agent for the Pennsylvania lines in Maryland, died at Atlantic City on Tuesday. Mr. Kennedy had been with the passenger department of the Pennsylvania twenty years.

Engineer William Haenel and Fireman Bob Tait have been assigned to engine 23, on the Third district, and Engineer A. J. Swartz and Fireman McLaughlin to engine 35, same district, on the Nickel Plate.

Another gravel train has been placed on the west end of the Nickel Plate. It is hauled by engine 105 with Tim Short at the throttle, and is manned by Conductor Devitt, Brakemen Reardon and D O'Rourke.

Rumor has it that the Pullman company has decided to reduce its rates and that it will begin in the parlor car service on eastern roads and eventually extend to the sleeping car service on the best paying lines.

Boilermaker Henry Geerken, of the Pittsburg, divides his time between work in the shops here and at Lima. He was at the latter place yesterday and will return there tomorrow to do some work for the company.

Fred Kellermann, of the Bass foundry, who had a foot burned Wednesday evening, is getting along as well as could be expected for one whose injuries are so painful. He will be unable to work for two or three weeks.

Arthur Collett, clerk in the office of Master Mechanic C. H. Doebler, of the Wabash, has returned from a trip down the St. Lawrence. While in Canada, Mr. Collett called upon Frank Morse, superintendent of motive power of the Grand Trunk.

Wm. F. Graham, of the office of the superintendent of motive power of the Pennsylvania company, has returned from a very pleasant two weeks' sojourn among friends at his old home, Tyrone, Pa. He was accompanied by his mother, who intends making her home with her son for some time.

The day is fast approaching when all railway employes will be uniformed The Chicago and Western Indiana has already adopted that rule and now all its switchmen, switch tenders, crossing men, grade crossing police, station men, ushers, baggage men, janitors and trainmen are neatly clothed in uniform

It is said that President Ingalls, of the Big Four lines, would like to drop the Peoria and Eastern, which was taken control of by the Big Four to put a check upon it, a rate cutting line and a general demoraliser of both passenger and freight rates. This he has succeeded in doing, but at an enormous expense.

The crew of a work train had an exciting time on the Grand Rapids road Wednesday morning While making a run to Kendallville to sidetrack for passenger train No 8, which was close behind it, the boarding car on the work train took fire and was soon a mass of flames. The engineer pulled open the throttle and fairly flew along the rails until Kendallville was reached. There he cut the burning car out and sat it upon an isolated track, where it soon burned up.

The receivers of the Norfolk and Western, as an economical measure, abolished the general superintendent's position, the division superintendents' positions and the engineer of maintenance of way, and gave instructions that all communications intended for such officials should be sent to Joseph Sands, the general manager. One of the receivers, when criticised for such action, is quoted as saying that instead of discharging section men and letting the road run down physically it is better to dismiss high salaried officers.

FLIRTED AT COLLEGE

THE EARLY ROMANCE OF MR. BRYAN AND HIS WIFE.

His Attentions to Her Then Very Nearly Led to Her Expulsion From School—He Talked the President Over, However, and He Was Allowed to Visit Her.

There is a romance connected with the early acquaintance of William Jennings Bryan with Miss Mary Baird, now Mrs. Bryan, which has never been published. Only a few persons know the story. One of this number is a Topeka man, who relates it.

At the same time that Miss Baird was a student in the Jacksonville Female college at Jacksonville, Ills., young Bryan was attending the Illinois college at the same place. After a certain hour in the afternoon the young ladies of the college were free to promenade about the college grounds, and while enjoying this recreation took the opportunity to flirt with the boys from the Illinois college, who were invariably on hand.

It was during these promenades that Miss Baird attracted the attention of young Bryan and a flirtation was commenced. This led to an acquaintance, and a meeting was arranged at the home of a relative of the young lady, in the suburbs of Jacksonville. The first meeting was but the forerunner of a series of weekly visits by both parties to the same place.

But the enjoyment of the young couple was not allowed to proceed without interruption. The matter came to the ears of the president of the female college and he at once called Miss Baird to him and questioned her concerning it. She acknowledged that she had been in the habit of meeting young Bryan, and as such conduct was distinctly against the rules of the college her sentence was expulsion. She was ordered to be in readiness to leave the college at a certain date.

The news of Miss Baird's expulsion reached Bryan the same day and without waiting to map out any plans of procedure he hastened to the president's office. Young Bryan was even then the prize orator of the Illinois college, and he started in to convince the president that he had taken the wrong course and that the expulsion was unmerited.

A few days prior to this event Bryan had written the parents of Miss Baird asking their consent to visit the young lady. Although he had not received a reply, he presumed on an affirmative answer and told the president that he had the consent of the young lady's parents and that his intentions were entirely honorable. He also presumed upon the affections of the young lady and stated that their formal engagement was only a matter of a few weeks.

At the end of an hour young Bryan had the president of the college looking at the matter in an entirely different light. Not only was the sentence of expulsion repealed, but Bryan obtained consent to visit Miss Baird at the college weekly.

Although it was not until after the young couple had left their respective colleges that their engagement was announced, it was while at school that they became fast friends. Both graduated at the same time and a few years later they were married.—Kansas State Journal.

Government Saves Millions.

Judge Welborn of the United States circuit court, sitting at Los Angeles, has handed down a decision of great moment, involving the right of congress to regulate rates. The railroads claimed they had a right to charge the government the same rates as others for troops, mails, etc., while congress held that they should not exceed half of the regular rate.

A test case was brought, and the decision of Judge Welborn is a complete victory for the government. The importance of this decision may be understood when it is stated that the Atlantic and Pacific alone, which is plaintiff in the suit, would receive $750,000 a year more for the transportation of troops. The amount involved on all of the railroads aggregates from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year.

Adjourned Till 1900.

Justice Elmendorf of Hurley, Ulster county, N. Y., had a remarkable case before him recently. For some time past a trespass suit has been in progress before him and the lawyers were fighting every point.

The other day, when an amended answer was put into the complaint, time was asked to prepare an answer. The squire asked how long a time was desired.

"Ten years!" was the reply. Surprising as it may appear, the opposing lawyer agreed and the court announced:

"Then, be it understood, that this case is adjourned to Aug. 11, 1906, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, and members of the jury can depart hence, to appear again promptly at that time."

Alaska Loses Rich Placer Mines.

The richest gold placer mines of Alaska have been transferred to Canadian territory, and miners are now paying miners' tax to British authorities. The territory in question is from three to eight miles in width and embraces the rich placer claims on Glacier and Miller creeks, which heretofore were supposed to be in Alaska territory. The transfer of territory is the result of resurveys recently made.

Is Kipling a Plagiarist?

A North Carolina writer accuses Rudyard Kipling of plagiarism and apparently makes a clear case against him. We believe this is the first charge of the kind which has been made against Rudyard, and therefore we're disposed to dismiss him with a warning. Next time he'll have to pay costs.—Atlanta Constitution.

AWARDED $40,000 DAMAGES.

Child Given a Verdict Against the Iron Mountain Railroad.

Probably the largest judgment ever recovered against a railroad company in the state of Arkansas for personal injuries was the one rendered by a jury in Bradley county Monday in the case of Esther Warren against the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway company, which was for $40,000.

The plaintiff in the case was a small child which was run over and had both legs and both arms mangled by one of the company's trains.

Suit was brought by the parents of the injured child in the Ashley county circuit court for $113,000 damages, and the case was removed to Bradley county on a change of venue.

National Editorial Association.

The executive committee of the National Editorial association met at the Planters' House, St. Louis, the other evening, with President R. H. Thomas of Mechanicsburg, Pa., in the chair and transacted some routine business. It was decided to hold the next annual convention at Galveston Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 3, 4 and 5, 1897. One of the features of next year's convention will be a trip to Mexico, for which the railroads promise to furnish every possible comfort and convenience. The matter of establishing a home for writers was informally discussed. Some plan will be decided among the members of the committee before the convention meets, and a report will be submitted to that body to act upon.

TO HELP THE CUBANS.

DR. J. HERBERT STEVENS IS ORGANIZING ANOTHER EXPEDITION.

He Was Reported Dead—Will Take One Hundred Men to Fight—Women May Be Taken Also as Nurses—Large Steam Yacht Will Carry the Filibusters.

One of the largest, best equipped and most formidable expeditions for the aid and comfort of the Cuban insurgents is due to sail from New York in three weeks.

The vessel is a large, swift steam yacht. The cargo is rifles, cartridges, powder, dynamite, medicine and warlike supplies of every sort. The company will consist of 100 or more determined men versed in the arts of Cuban warfare, sworn to die if need be in defense of the single starred flag of Cuba libre. The commander of the expedition is Dr. J. Herbert Stevens, formerly of Rochester, N. H., later of Malden, Mass., and still later of Boston, who was reported to have been killed by a dynamite explosion in Cuba shortly after landing there six months ago, but who, for purposes that are now manifest, purposely spread the report.

The destination is some port in Cuba known only to the commander and his trusted lieutenants and those in this country who have the cause of Cuba most deeply at heart. So certain is the management of the expedition that there will be absolute safety for all that several women, among them the wife of Dr. Stevens, are considering the question of accompanying the expedition with the intention of becoming nurses in the permanent hospitals which are now being built in the mountain fastnesses of the insurgent country.

Hardly less impenetrable than the Cuban jungles was the wall of secrecy that had been built up about the temporary abiding place of Dr. Stevens, where, until recently, he had remained securely hidden at the home of his wife, five miles from Rochester, on a lonely country road. It was the apparent lack of solicitude on the part of the doctor's intimates regarding his death that caused a suspicion to be entertained that he was, after all, alive.

A representative of the New York World drove to the house of Dr. Stevens' father-in-law, Mr. Berry, and inquired for the missing man. His presence was strenuously denied and letters shown as testimony that the man was not there. The World man insisted, however, and at last Dr. Stevens, tired of seclusion, appeared to answer in his own person the question whether he was alive or dead. Worn with the work of his duties as a surgeon in the insurgent army, bronzed by continued exposure to the tropical sun and thin from the effects of malaria, he was scarcely recognizable as he appeared, clad in the uniform of an officer in the patriot army—a white coat, bare of all decorations save shoulder knots of yellow, and the narrow stripes on the seam of his military trousers. As he held out his hand in greeting he said:

"I did not suppose that a soul on earth outside of my family and the Cuban officers, in New York knew of my whereabouts. I thought that every source of information had been closed, for my intention to come to this country at this time was kept secret from my nearest friends, and they were quite as surprised at my arrival as though I had risen from the dead."

The doctor said that after leaving this country in April he connected himself with the mail column of the insurgent forces and had since that time been in almost every battle that had taken place. He was provided with a horse, and, following the soldiers as they advanced for the contest, he did all his surgical work upon the field where the soldiers fell.

So thoroughly imbued is he with the spirit of the cause which he has espoused that he is anxious that his wife should accompany him on the return trip to Cuba. Should she decide to go, she will be installed on her arrival as the head matron of the hospital of which Dr. Stevens will probably have sole charge.

Dr. Stevens refused to give any details of the expedition he intended to head.—New York World.

WHEN'S AN EGG A CHICKEN?

Puzzling Question Brought Forward In a Lawsuit In Jersey City.

A novel story about eggs has been produced in Jersey City, which involves a suit and a question of law that perplexes Justice of the Peace Erwin. The question is whether eggs, after having existed in a state of incubation long enough to have reached an advanced stage in the process of segmentation, are eggs or chickens.

John Jobst about two weeks ago owned a snarly dog, a maternally inclined hen and 17 eggs, which had been guaranteed to contain the embryos of as many game chickens.

He valued the eggs at $15, the hen at $10 and the dog at $75. The dog bit a child, and, upon request of the child's mother, Justice Erwin ordered Constables Daly and Boland to kill the dog.

The constables went to Jobst's barn, in which the culprit had been locked, and, upon the owner's refusal to give up the keys, broke a door, which was not used, and behind which meditatively sat the hen upon the 17 valuable eggs. The surprised fowl flew from her nest, and the dog opened wide his mouth, so as to bark his loudest. Into this opening Constable Daly sent a lump of lead, which ended the animal's life.

The hen had witnessed the tragedy and refused to resume her former occupation. The eggs became chilled and spoiled.

Mr. Ryerson, for the defense, combatted the allegation of Jobst's lawyer that the eggs were chickens and that their value had increased 500 per cent by remaining under a hen 12 days.

Mr. Jobst interrupted the warm arguments of counsel by producing one of the eggs and making an offer to break and demonstrate in that way that it contained a chicken. To this there was a general demurrer, and Justice Erwin, fearing what might happen, hastily adjourned the court, reserving his decision.—New York Herald.

Women Can't Run For Office In Michigan.

Mrs. Lucy F. Moorehouse, who was nominated by the national Prohibitionist state convention for the office of superintendent of public instruction in Michigan, cannot run. The attorney general has filed an opinion in which he says that the office is one created by the constitution, and women are not eligible to hold the office any more than they would be that of governor. He holds that a woman cannot hold an office for which she cannot vote.

FOR THE CANNIBALS.

GHASTLY PRACTICES FOUNDED ON ANCIENT THEORY.

Eat Human Flesh to Gain Strength—Savages Who Believe That Courage and Other Valuable Qualities Come from the Practice.

THE story about cannibals in Africa, told by Captain Hinde at the meeting of the British association, says a writer in the Saturday Review, aroused sufficient interest to make the subject worth pursuing. He noticed that his followers were in the habit of breaking the legs of their game several days before they killed them, in order to make the meat more tender. Inquiring as to their reasons, he was told that this was the result of experience with human flesh; that they always broke the legs and arms of their captives and then tied them up to their necks in a flowing stream, in such a way that they could neither fall asleep and drown nor commit suicide and that at the end of three days they could be killed with the assurance that they would be very tender eating. As the president of the geographical section remarked at the time, it is necessary to divest ourselves of all insular prejudices in treating of cannibalism. The idea of eating a part of a deceased human being with the object of acquiring some of his qualities and virtues is widespread and has been so from time immemorial. Such sacrificial or sacramental eating is common to most religions.

In Peru a figure made of dough is baked and eaten and the people talk of this as "eating the god." In certain parts of France a figure is made with the last of the harvest corn and eaten under the impression that it contains the spirit of fertility. This was the earliest form of cannibalism, and the very name of cannibal is derived from the Caribs, who used to devour their enemies with the idea of acquiring their courage. They were the bravest of the aborigines of South America and did not pursue the practice to supply themselves with food. They pretended they could distinguish the flavor of a Spaniard, an Englishman and a Frenchman. A French traveler who has written about them indulges the traditional vanity of his nation by declaring that the French flesh had far and away the superior flavor.

In some parts of England it is the custom, when a man is laid out, to bake what is called a corpse cake. This is put to rise near the fire on the dead body, and is supposed to absorb the virtues of the deceased. In the Balkan states a little baked image accompanies every funeral procession, and the mourners eat it afterward, exclaiming: "God rest him!" In Wales and Herefordshire there exists a regular paid functionary known as the "sin-eater." He is described as a "long, lean, lamentable rascal." On the breast of a corpse the relatives place bread and cheese and beer, which the "sin-eater" consumes, in order to appropriate the sins of the deceased. Formerly he received six-pence for his trouble, and took care to make himself scarce as soon as possible after his duties were performed, but of late years his price has risen to half a crown.

Cannibalism has been surprisingly little discussed in books of travel. We are told that in such and such a district cannibals are to be found, but we hear no details, neither how the flesh is prepared, what joints are preferred, nor to what extent the practice is prevalent. Captain Hinde asserts that nearly all the tribes in the Congo basin are or have been cannibals, and that the practice is on the increase, not merely for superstitious reasons, but also for the provision of food.

There is a certain sturdy, fat race in Africa which has never been famous for its prowess, but which is made a regular staple article of diet. Whole cargoes are constantly carried up the river and sold to the natives for food. Inquiries for a fresh supply of slaves will often be accompanied by the complaint that "meat is scarce just now."

The Batella are described as a fine race, with no old or infirm persons among them. The reason of this is not far to seek, for at the first sign of decrepitude the sufferer is killed and eaten, parents even being devoured by their own children. The members of this tribe consider human flesh the greatest of delicacies and are ever on the watch for any excuse to kill and eat their comrades. The fate of the individuals is decided by their king. So soon as a victim is appointed to die, mobs collect outside the king's house and the victim is given over to them alive, but does not long remain alive, for the people tear him to pieces as quickly as a pack of hounds will make an end of a hare. Each sets himself out to cut off his favorite tit-bit, and no one makes it his business to kill the victim first, lest a coveted piece should thereby be lost.

LI HUNG CHANG.

China's Statesman is Now Our Guest.

Arrives This Morning in New York Harbor

And is Honored by a Grand Display of Warships and Commercial Craft.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Promptly at 8 o'clock this morning colors were hoisted on board the fleet of American warships at anchor off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, with the usual ceremonies, the band of the flagship New York playing the "Star Spangled Banner." Shortly afterwards the crews of all the ships were busily engaged in polishing and burnishing, oiling and cleaning, vigorously placing the finishing touches upon the fine naval display in all its glory in honor of Uncle Sam and preparatory to welcoming Li Hung Chang, the "Grand Old Man" of China, the statesman of many titles, in an appropriate manner.

Shortly after the announcement at 9 o'clock that the St. Louis was sighted east of Fire Island, throngs of people travelled across the ferries or by other routes to Fort Wadsworth, Fort Hamilton, Bay Ridge, Quarantine, Tompkinsville and other points from which the arrival and greeting of the distinguished guest of the nation could be witnessed to the best advantage. Other crowds flocked to the Battery and still others stationed themselves at an early hour in the vicinity of the American line dock, where the traveller was to land. It is doubtful if New York bay ever presented a grander sight than it did this morning, for, anchored there in stately strength, were eleven of the war ships of the new navy of the United States, the embodiment of grace and strength, of speed and offensive power.

The Chinese statesman at the review off Spithead, after he visited Queen Victoria, at Osborne, was treated to a fine display of warships, forty-seven ships, seventy-seven battleships and cruisers and twenty torpedo destroyers being there aligned for his inspection, but he never set eyes on a finer fleet than that commanded by Admiral Bunce today. Each vessel represented the very latest improvement in everything. This gallant fleet, swung in double column, en enclenon, to the flood tide at 10 o'clock, rains pointing seaward.

It was originally intended to take Li Hung Chang off the St. Louis at quarantine and convey him to some pier up town and nearer the Waldorf than the American line pier, which is down town, but the Chinese minister represented to General Ruger that the age of the Chinese statesman precluded any such feat of strength and agility as clambering from the St. Louis to the Dolphin, and so this feature of the program was abandoned.

On board the Dolphin with General Ruger were the Chinese Minister Yang and suite, the Chinese consul, a few specially invited guests and a representative of the Associated Press. It was decided to address the Chinese statesman as 'Your excellency," and so he will be officially termed during his stay in the United States.

Li Hung Chang's suite consists of about forty persons and he has with him about 300 pieces of baggage, some of them being of immense size. The suptuous coffin which he carried with him as a matter of precaution, has been sent back to China, via the Suez canal, which would seem to show that the traveler has no fear of dying before reaching his native land again.

Coming next to the great Chinese statesman in rank, of the party visiting the United States, is Li King Fong, or Lord Li, the adopted son of Li Hung Chang, who has been secretary of the Chinese legation at London and minister to Japan. Then comes Lo Feng Luh, the principal interpreter, who was educated in England, and was chief of the naval school at Tien Tsin. After him in rank come the four secretaries, Yuh Shh Mei, Lien Chun King, Lin Ho Shu and Di King Shu, the second son of Li Hung Chang. The attaches are next in rank; they are Chang Liu, Huk Ki, Sieh Pang Ho, Pah Hin, Huang Ching, Lo Chung Sung and Hung Chai Siang. Also accompanying Li Hung Chang is Dr. Irwin, an English physician, Major Von Hanneken, of Chino Japanese war fame, and a force of valets, cooks, etc.

The Dolphin steamed down the bay, with General Ruger and the guests on board, shortly after 10 o'clock, and at 10:30 she dropped anchor off Quarantine, awaiting the arrival of the St. Louis.

The St. Louis arrived at Quarantine at 12:30 and was immediately boarded by the government welcoming officers from the cruiser Dolphin, who extended to the Chinese statesman, in behalf of President Cleveland, a welcome to the United States.

Chinatown was ready early today to celebrate the landing here of H. I. C. M.'s ambassador. Red, yellow and green bunting, disguised the houses, mean, dingy, gray brown tenements, into objects of lively, brilliant interest, while the Chinese of the quarter, dressed in their shimmering silks or bright hued cotton, stood in the doorways or on the fire escapes watching placidly the commotion in the streets. Their Chinese visitors from other parts of the town and other towns and villages hereabouts were scurrying hither and thither, seeking lodging or restaurant or paying calls.

The St. Louis slowly moved up the bay, surrounded by all kinds of gaily decorated craft and with the Dolphin quite near her, to the music of a tremendous chorus of steam whistles and continual fusilade of giant firecrackers, etc As the St. Louis neared the American fleet, the first gun of the salute in honor of the Chinese visitor was fired from the flagship New York, gun by gun, until twenty one shots had been fired. The New York was the only warship to fire a salute, but the other ships dipped their colors as the St. Louis passed. They presented a magnificent appearance and were watched with the greatest interest by the Chinese embassador and his suite from the position which they occupied on the port side of the upper deck of the American liner.

At quarantine it was learned that Li Hung Chang stood the voyage remarkably well and had not been at all sea sick. The St. Louis moved up the harbor in a sort of triumphal procession, greeted on all sides with the tooting of steam whistles and other salutes and eventually reached her dock at 1:30 p. m. But the party was not able to land until some time later, owing to the necessary delay in warping the ship alongside of her wharf. The vicinity of the dock was about as lively as the finish line on a yacht race day and with the America's cup at stake. All kinds of craft were dashing here and there, in everybody's way, but escaping accident by a series of miracles.

The yellow standard of China was loudly cheered by the crowds about the wharf as the bow of the big steamship neared the landing place of the American line and the Chinese party was received at the pier by the guard of honor of the marine and infantry and the immense crowd of people, which was with difficulty kept back from the approaches by a large force of police. The Chinese standard was hauled down from the American line steamer at 1:50 p. m., as the Chinese ambassador landed on the wharf and entered the carriages in attendance The first carriage contained the ambassador and General Ruger and in the next were Tao-Tai-Li, Major Von Hanneken and a member of the staff of General Ruger. In the third carriage was Lord Li and his wife, Loh-Fong-Loh and another staff officer.

After them came carriages containing the Chinese minister and the Chinese consul and their suits, accompanied by staff officers The procession left the pier headed by a detachment of the Sixth cavalry and having another detachment of the same regiment in its rear, the whole was preceded by a detachment of mounted police, and it moved away amid loud cheering. The route was to West street and Bowling Green, up Broadway to Fourth street, thence through Washington square and up Fifth avenue to the Waldorf. The route of the procession was guarded by police and densely packed with spectators. A quantity of hunting was displayed on all sides and among it the Chinese standard was continuously seen.

A MOTHER'S CRIME.

And Then Turned the Weapon Upon Herself With Fatal Results.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 28.—Neighbors who broke into the home of C. W. Green, traveling passenger agent of the Big Four railway, this forenoon, found the three children, two boys, aged respectively thirteen and four years, and a girl, aged nine, lying dead in bed. They had been shot and instantly killed as they slept. In another part of the house Mrs. Green, also dead, lay upon the floor, weltering in her own blood. The woman had apparently fired and killed her children, then dispatched herself, using a revolver. Mrs. Green had apparently suddenly become crazed in the night and risen and committed the terrible crime. She is said to have been addicted to morphine. Mrs. Green was thirty-five years old. Mr. Green, who is the traveling passenger agent for this territory for the Big Four railroad, left the city a week ago last Tuesday for a trip to Salt Lake City with Mr. Lynch, assistant passenger agent of that road.

CAMPAIGN TOUR.

Democratic Presidential Candidate Among the People.

W. J. Bryan Starts Out for a Few Days' Speaking Tour of Northern New York.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug 28.—In his Syracuse speech Wm. J. Bryan explained his campaigning tour by remarking that because few of the people had enough money this year to visit a presidential candidate it seemed only fair that the candidate should go to see the people. In pursuance to this policy Mr. Bryan left Buffalo by trolley this morning to begin a two days' campaign among the smaller cities of northern New York.

At Tonawanda there were gathered 200 or 300 people when the car stopped in the center of the town and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, standing on the platform, shook hands with a typical country crowd. Mr. Bryan spoke to them briefly, his voice in its hoarseness showing the wear and tear of the week's work, and when the trolley moved off it was followed by three cheers for the next president. Mr. Bryan spoke as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—The Chicago platform, while it was written and adopted by the democrats of the west and south, does not raise any sectional question. It simply reasserts the democracy first taught by Thomas Jefferson and afterwards defended by Andrew Jackson and the democracy upon which the democratic party must always stand, unless it decides to abandon the principles which have been its principles from the beginning and substitutes the plutocracy that some have called modern democracy.

The Chicago platform simply reiterates those fundamental principles upon which our form of government must rest. The keynote of the Chicago platform is found in the declaration of independence, that all men are created equal, and that, therefore, no citizens have the right to appropriate to themselves the blessings that the Creator intends for all the people of this country. Laws should not be made so that the many will and the few enjoy the fruits of the toil of the many. That platform means that every man shall be defended in the enjoyment of that which he earns, but that no man shall be permitted to enjoy what somebody else has earned and which is taken from him by vicious legislation.

The reason they use abusive epithets and apply hard names to those who support that platform is because they know that the platform is a menace to the wrong doer, not the smaller wrong doer only but also to the larger transgressor who attempts to use the government as his instrument to wrong others.

I do not think it is going to require a great deal of talking in this campaign. We are not going to have any difficulty to find speakers. If we go out in any of the stores, the machine shops, the farm or to the men who work along the road we will find the men who know enough about the principles of this government to be able to discuss these questions and apply them to themselves. The great common people do not need any particular class to tell them what they shall do. They can think for themselves, and I trust that when November comes they will act for themselves. [Great applause.]

During the morning ride Mr. Bryan gave to the Associated Press a statement of his views concerning the party outlook in the state of New York. Coming after his recent visits with Senator Hill, State Chairman Hinley, and minor party men in the largest cities of the state, all of which he has visited, the statement may be considered significant. Mr. Bryan said: "I am more than gratified with the demonstration of last evening. It far surpassed anything which I had expected. I am also pleased to find so unanimous a sentiment in favor of the endorsement of the action of the Chicago convention. From what I have seen in New York and from the sentiments expressed by members of the state organization, I am satisfied that the state convention will endorse the platform as well as the ticket. Some of the democrats may oppose parts of the platform, but it is the national platform and will be accepted as a whole."

During the brief stop in Niagara the Bryan party was taken on a special car of the Gorge railroad to Lewiston, a distance of several miles down the river. The road is built under the cliff on the American side and runs close by the rapids, commanding a fine view of the falls Mr. and Mrs. Bryan stood on the front platform and at Lewiston shook hands with a small party. After ascending the tower for a view of the falls they boarded a car for Nowelsville, near Medina, to speak at the farmers picnic.

The suggestion that the presence of the suppressed usurper, Said Khalid, at the German consulate, implies a political intrigue, is not credited here, and it is expected that Khalid will be handed over to the British officials as soon as the German consul receives the necessary instructions from Berlin.

ARENA OF POLITICS

J. M. Robinson Endorsed by the Populists.

Republican Convention Held Tomorrow.

Interesting Contests for the Nominations—Meetings Held by the Democrats and Republicans.

The populists of this congressional district met in convention at Auburn yesterday and indorsed as their candidate for congress J. M. Robinson, of this city, the democratic nominee, who was nominated in April by the democratic congressional convention, which assembled at Kendallville, for the same position.

The Auburn convention was attended by populists from the different counties in the district W. F. Francis, of DeKalb county, was made chairman, and H. H. Haines, of this city, selected as secretary.

After the transaction of the usual preliminary business, the convention took up the question of the nomination of a candidate for congress. There were two candidates, J. M. Robinson and C. F. Shonts, of this city, and the ballot resulted: Robinson, 74, Shonts, 25, and, on motion of Mr. Shonts, the nomination of Mr Robinson was made unanimous.

A committee, of which Messrs. Kelley and Shonts are members, was appointed to notify Mr. Robinson of his nomination and to ask him to endorse the financial plank of the St Louis populist convention. Before the adjournment of the convention the following resolution was presented and unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, By the Twelfth district people's party congressional convention, that justice to the people's party of Indiana makes it imperatively necessary that the democratic party of Indiana should place upon the democratic electoral ticket sufficient Bryan and Watson electors to give the people's party a fair proportion of the electors in accordance with the vote cast as compared with the democratic vote of the state in the election of 1894."

The convention selected the chairman and secretary of the convention to act, respectively, in that capacity for the district organization.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TOMORROW.

The republican county convention which assembles in this city tomorrow to nominate candidates for the various county offices will meet at Princess rink at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Unlike the usual republican county conventions of Allen, the one tomorrow promises to have a little of the spirit which characterizes the conventions of the democrats There will be quite a contest for the nominations for the offices of sheriff, treasurer and prosecuting attorney. THE SENTINEL has already given the names of the candidates for each of these offices. There are two for prosecuting attorney and five for sheriff. There are also two candidates for treasurer, W. T. Jefferies, formerly city clerk, and A. R. McCurdy, of DeWald & Co. These contests will be animated, as the candidates have been hard at work at the task of building up their political fences."

STEEL BILLET POOL.

It Holds Its Second Monthly Meeting at Cresson.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 28.—The meeting of the steel billet pool, otherwise the American Bessemer association, which was scheduled for this city was suddenly changed to Cresson and it is now in session there. The reason for the change is said to be the desire to avoid the importunities of the metal brokers for certain changes. As this is the first month that the pool has been in actual operation the meeting is regarded as important. Considerable basic open hearth steel has been sold by members of the pool at prices lower than the pool price of bessemer, and it is said that prices for basic open hearth will be fixed, which will be higher than for bessemer steel. The allotment basis will also be changed from billets to ingots While some members favor lower prices, no reduction is expected.

HOUSES RANSACKED

Many Valuable Goods Are Stolen

Gang of Professional Thieves Operating In This City.

Residence of William Orrock Robbed of Many Costly Articles—Ernst Kampe's House Entered.

Two residences were broken into by burglars last night and the work was that of professionals A very complete job was accomplished at the residence of William Orrock, 166 Calhoun street, which leaves no traces of amateur thievery. It is plainly the methodical raid of the most dangerous class of household thieves.

William Orrock is a traveling lumber merchant whose business takes him out of the city a good deal of the time He was absent yesterday. Late yesterday afternoon Mrs. Orrock and children went to visit her mother, Mrs. Bond, and did not return home until this morning Upon entering the house, Mrs. Orrock made the discovery that burglars had been at work during her absence, ransacking the rooms upstairs and down and leaving the house in such a state of confusion that it will take weeks to restore it to a normal state of order.

Many valuable articles were stolen, among them a gold watch, an old fashioned silver watch, a 38 calibre revolver, a solid gold Caledonina medal and $6 in money. Mrs. Orrock had taken with her all other cash there was in the house and thus frustrated the chief plans of the thieves, as it was evident that they were after money above anything else. Many valuable goods, such as silverware and ornaments, were left behind.

The extent of the loss is not known and will not be until Mr. Orrock's return home tomorrow.

ANOTHER ONE.

The residence of Ernst G. Kampe, at 18 Union street, was entered by burglars last night, and, although the house was ransacked, no articles of value have yet been missed.

The thieves were probably frightened away. Several suspicious characters have been seen on the west side the past few nights and a detective has been detailed to investigate and arrest parties seen loitering about.

Captain J. B. White, a Scotchman and an ardent advocate of Scotland's rights, is disposed to find fault with American newspapers in general and Fort Wayne papers in particular for the misuse of the word "England" when Great Britain is meant Several years ago the North American United Caledonian association held its meeting in Chicago, and, among other resolutions adopted was one calling the attention of the press to the practice. The Caledonia argued that, while it may be unintentional, any reference to Great Britain by using the word "England" was an insult to the Scotch people whose country formed no insignificant part of Great Britain. These resolutions were printed in circular form and THE SENTINEL acknowledges the receipt of a copy, together with a note from Captain White calling attention to the matter

The Gist of the Question.

It is the right to use either metal and the fact that the other metal is accessible and may be used that constitutes the principal merit of bimetallism There is a calamity when one metal goes out of circulation if it is the only metal the law has provided for use as primary money. But there is no calamity on one of the metals going out of circulation if the other metal is accessible, the mints open to its free coinage and the people have the option to use it.

Gold is now out of circulation. There is no gold among the people. It is cornered in the bank vaults. It is leaving us to go to Europe to pay $250,000 000 annually as interest on our gold debts authorized by the act of 1878 Under the gold standard it is only a question of time when all our gold will leave us. We produce about $40,000,000 a year and are sending $250,000,000 a year to Europe as interest on debts of ours held by foreigners. The gold being shipped back to us is borrowed gold that is increasing our gold debt to Europe and intensifying the situation. It means in the future more gold must be annually shipped to Europe to pay our increasing gold interest. It means that we have committed ourselves to an erroneous financial system, and the longer it lasts the greater our suffering must be in the end.

The gist of the financial question is this: Men who deal in money are interested in making the property they deal in more and more valuable. This is the natural instinct in dealers in any property.

The money dealer understands this principle, and knowing that money is made by law he has gone to where the law is made and caused the destruction of one-half the money of the world. He is a dealer in money. It is the property that he studies. When he makes his money so valuable that it will buy more and more of your property and mine, he is the gainer. When the farmer's wheat exchanges for less and less money, the farmer grows relatively poorer than the man who owns the money. The unfortunate circumstance that adds additional gravity to the situation is that the money deals in a property upon which all civilization is depending. It is the blood of civilization in which he deals and when he absorbs it he strangles civilization. When he depletes the arteries of commerce by hoarding about him this blood of civilization—society, arts, commerce—civilization itself is affected. Free coinage of silver will relieve the strain on gold and break the grip of the money lender.

Value of the Silver Dollar.

All the assertions of the gold contractionists to the contrary, our silver dollar is worth just as much beyond the borders of the United States as the gold dollar. In Europe our silver dollar would not find ready acceptance in payment of purchases but even so, our gold coins would be accepted with reluctance. Indeed, outside of the financial centers, neither gold nor silver dollars would find acceptance at all.

Without the stamp which makes our silver dollar in every way the equal of our gold dollar in debt paying and purchasing power, the 371¼ grains of pure silver which it contains is worth, at this time, but fifty-three cents in gold. So if melted down so that this stamp is effaced, our silver dollar loses nearly one half its value. The same amount of bullion remains, but the silver as bullion is worth forty-seven cents less than the same amount of bullion as coin. But the fact that the weight of silver bullion in our silver dollar is worth but fifty-three cents in gold does not cause our silver dollar to lose any part of its value, much less forty-seven per cent., on passing beyond the borders of the United States.

The purchasing power of the silver dollar is equal to that of the gold dollar, and so long as this is so, the silver dollar will keep its value as the equal of the gold dollar, whether at home or abroad. No one will sell the silver dollar abroad for less than the gold dollar, and the foreigner will be willing to pay just as much for our silver as for our gold coin so long as the silver dollar, if sent to America, will buy just as much of cotton, wheat, etc., as gold.

That our silver dollar is worth forty-seven cents more than the weight of silver bullion that it contains, while the bullion value and coin value of our gold coin are exact equivalents, is due solely to the fact that privileges of mintage that are granted to gold are denied to silver. Our mints being open to the free coinage of gold into full legal tender coin, gold bullion is the equivalent of gold coin. The owner of gold bullion has the right to take it to the mints and receive in return therefor gold coin, weight for weight, with the bullion deposited, and without other charge than the cost of assaying and refining the metal.

In short, if gold is deposited at the mint of the required fineness of coinage, that is nine parts pure gold to one of alloy, there will be returned to the depositor, and free of all charge for mintage, gold coin, or its equivalent at the rate of one dollar for every 25 8 grains of standard gold deposited. Such being the case, it is clear, gold bullion must be the equivalent of gold coin, and that 25 8 grains of standard gold, the weight of standard gold in the eagle, must have the same value as the eagle, whether coined or not. The government being required to convert gold bullion into gold coin free of charge, it is obvious no one will sell gold bullion for less than its coinage value, i. e, for less than one dollar for 25 8 grains of standard, or 23.22 grains of pure gold. It is also obvious that gold bullion can never command a price materially above the coinage value, for no jeweler or manufacturer having use for gold in the arts will pay materially more than one dollar for 23 22 grains of pure gold. Rather than do so he will obtain the necessary gold by melting down gold coin. Indeed, it is in this way that much of the demand for gold, industrially, is now supplied.

So it is that through the privileges of free mintage extended to the owner of gold bullion, gold bullion and gold coin have always the same value and must always have the same value so long as gold bullion is convertible by the government into coin without expense to the owner. Extend the same privileges to the owner of silver bullion and at once the same relation will be established between silver bullion and silver coin, and the difference between the value of silver as bullion and silver as coin will at once disappear. That it now exists is due simply to the fact that the coinage of silver is restricted.

That the silver dollar has appreciated with gold and kept at a par with the gold dollar is due solely to the fact that as money it is just as serviceable as gold. It has the same debt paying power and the same purchasing power as gold, and consequently it has maintained the same value. The impression held by many and so ardently fostered by the gold press, that the parity of the silver dollar with the gold is only maintained through the redemption by the government of silver dollars in gold coin on demand is absolutely without foundation. So is the assertion that it has been found impossible to put the silver dollars coined under the Bland and Sherman acts into circulation, and that three hundred and seventy odd million of silver dollars are piled up uselessly in the treasury because the people do not want them, and will not keep them in circulation. As a matter of fact, this silver forms the basis of much the larger part of the currency that we use in our daily transactions, and nine tenths of these so called useless silver dollars are now really in circulation in the shape of silver certificates.

GOLD SHIPMENTS.

How the United States Can Stop Them.

(Written for THE SENTINEL)

Who can think of Thomas Jefferson, of Thomas H. Benton, of Andrew Jackson, and other founders of the democratic party, without thinking at the same time of "gold and silver" in the coinage of the United States? Either is sure to recall the other. Who that lived in Benton's time, can forget his picture of the gold and silver coins that would be seen through "interstices of silken purses" of the people when once bank notes should be banished from the land, and "gold and silver" money should take their place? Why, it is to this idea of Thomas H. Benton—("Old Bullion," as nicknamed in derision)—of "gold and silver" as basis of the national coinage, that the introduction of "the sub-treasury system" in our finances is due. Little did Benton think or imagine that in less than fifty years after his death, this same sub treasury system would become the main instrument of international exchange for all the world, for collection of gold coin and bullion and its distribution among the national treasuries and banking houses of Europe? And this function of collecting and distributing the gold of the world must continue to be the leading function of the sub-treasuries in New York, Boston and San Francisco, until the law of congress that gives to the government the right of option to pay current demands in gold or silver coin, at discretion, unless otherwise provided in the conduct of the finances. The restoration of this lost government option to pay current demands in gold or silver coin, at discretion, is all that is needed to stop the shipping of gold from New York to Liverpool and London, and to turn the tide of such shipments the other way. Old time democrats will recall the picture of Robert J. Walker, in his famous Texas letter in 1844, of the "time when New York shall wrest from Liverpool and London the trident of the ocean." That time has now come, if we can muster pluck and courage enough to compel those who administer the national finances, to exercise the government option to pay current demands in gold or silver coin at discretion, unless otherwise provided in the contract. This question is now on, and is to be decided by vote of the people in this election, viz. whether the government shall rule its own finances at its own option and discretion, or whether these finances shall be ruled by the option of individual foreditors. It is but the question of the right of national self defense, in another form. Without this right of option, and this safe measure of discretion in the conservation and control of the revenues, the government may without warning, be prostrated to the ignominious level of that of Mexico, because of its inability to keep its gold revenues for its own use, rather than that of European treasures and bankers.

Restoration of this lost option together with that of the free coinage of silver, may be set down as the twin issues of the pending canvass and campaign of the people. Either of these two would be great achievements, but both of them together could not fail to make a swelling tide of prosperity.

If, as has been said of Alexander Hamilton and his greatest public work, (his draft of the act of congress that established the treasury system of the United States in 1792), "He touched the prostrate form of public credit," and it sprang at once into life and vigor; so with equal truthfulness shall it be said of William J. Bryan in 1897, his touch of the treasury and its finances roused the corpse of public confidence from its long sleep of death, and gave it strength and vigor to return to the ways, means and methods of "gold and silver" coinage, provided by the constitution. Hamilton was but thirty-six years old in 1792 and Bryan thirty-six in 1897—both of them but boys as compared by age with some of the venerables who now clamor for "sound money," with no definite idea of what sound money is.

The Crop That Never Fails.

Drought or flood, cold or hot, one crop never fails. It is the crop of manuscripts that pour into the offices of newspapers and publishers. Midsummer dullness or midwinter mirthless cannot stop them.

On an average perhaps one manuscript in 20 of the great loads that are dumped before editors is worth publishing. That would certainly be a liberal estimate. An odd coincidence, too, is found in the fact that the ones least worth reading are the ones that are the most slovenly looking and illegible.

A large proportion of community seem to have imbibed the notion that they can write for publication and write well enough to be paid for it. They are mistaken, at least all but about one in a hundred are mistaken. The American people ought all to be well educated and have practice in composition sufficiently to write well enough for publication if necessary. But they should not practice on patient and long suffering editors. They should wastebasket their maiden efforts at home.

The only person who should write is the one who has something to say. If in preparing his manuscript he thinks much of the money he expects to get for it and nothing at all of the message he has to convey in print, it is a sure sign that individual was never intended for a writer

The steel frame umbrella is now the thing, and nobody who thinks himself anybody in the fashionable world would be without one. It is such a very close roller that it commends itself especially to the high roller of society. But it has its drawbacks. If the high roller should be carrying his steel frame close roller in the vicinity of an electric light wire or trolley wire and should touch with the steel point of his umbrella the wire, he would receive a terrible shock and might even lose his life. Accidents such as this have happened. While we need not abandon our close roller umbrella on this account, it is very necessary for us to look out where we put the point of it

NOTES

Huff has asked for his release.

"Tony" Esterguest, Fort Wayne's new third baseman, is said to be all right.

A minor league umpire has secured judgment for back salary. This is the first instance on record where the grievance of an umpire was recognized.

Fort Wayne has lost less games than any other team in the Inter State league In both series Toledo has played eleven more games than any other team.

A plaintive wail comes up from New Castle. The rooters that once rooted in that town root no more. The team executed a performance on the chutes and is now playing to a grand stand and bleechers filled principally with atmosphere. In fact, the attendance is almost as light as it is at Toledo, and the visions of a berth in the Western league have turned to nightmares.

MADE AN ASSIGNMENT.

The Elgin Sewing Machine and Bicycle Company.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 —The Elgin Sewing Machine and Bicycle company has made an assignment in favor of Dewitt Campbell. Assets are estimated at $150 000, and liabilities at $100,000. The concern, up to a week ago, employed 300 hands. The failure is attributed to the action of the employes to whom the company, it is said, is indebted to the extent of $4 000. The employes threatened attachment proceedings and the assignment was forced by this, so the officers say.

A JUNIOR REPUBLIC.

UNIQUE COMMUNITY AT FREEVILLE, NEW YORK STATE.

A Government for and by the Children—The Tenement Houses of Darkest New York Supply the Citizens — How They Govern Themselves.

(Special Letter.)

A VISIT to the Junior Republic at Freeville, N. Y., is sufficient to demonstrate to the most skeptical mind the usefulness of Wm. R. George's original scheme of allowing little girls and boys from the lowest tenement house districts in New York to try the experiment of governing themselves.

Such a political economist as Jeremiah W. Jenks has stated that he feels convinced that it is an experiment which is not merely profoundly interesting, but also very valuable from the scientific point of view. Furthermore, that Mr. George is conducting the plan on what seems to be a sound educational basis and he hopes that the republic can be allowed to develop naturally along the lines on which it has run so far.

It has passed the experimental stage and is the most practical scheme which has yet been devised for helping the poorer classes. It teaches the children respect for themselves and respect for law, the value of money, and how to earn it. If one visits the republic with the idea that it is a toy republic one becomes quickly undeceived upon an introduction to it. The children, ranging between the ages of twelve and seventeen, are in dead earnest. They literally govern themselves. They have their own legislature and make their own laws. Provided the new-comers do not like the laws, Mr. George merely says, "Change them, then, if you do not like them." And they proceed to change them in the usual way. What could be better than such an opportunity to study the government of their country upon which they are endeavoring to model their own. They return to their homes with a far greater knowledge of law than has been acquired by their parents during their whole lives.

Up to this period of its development Mr. George has found it best to keep the power of veto in his own hands, but so admirably have the miniature men and women prepared their bills that seldom has their chief executive been compelled to prevent enactment of any measures passed by the legislative body, and upon a recent visit it was learned that even so important a position as the presidency was to be turned over to the boys this summer. "Senators" and members of the house and congressmen were "running" for office very much in the same manner as their elders do. No such perplexing problems as the present financial one, however, agitates their minds. Their bullion is tin, and they have a single American standard which they coin themselves. And it goes a long way. For if one takes twenty-five cents of American money to their bank, one receives in return two dollars in tin money which is just eight times greater than ours. It is somewhat startling to hear a youngster narrate to his comrades the sale of a pair of chickens for twenty dollars until one has been let into the intricacies of their money system.

Some of the children earn as much as ninety cents a day, sufficient to enable them to save by the end of the season an amount that will buy clothes enough with which to supply their families through the winter. These clothes are contributed by surrounding towns, as well as food and furniture, all of which, in addition to money, they are still much in need of.

A growing interest in the republic is

WILLIAM R. GEORGE.

apparent. Such contributions as that of the mayor of New York city for $225, $100 from Ida Fuller; the proceeds of Bentley's circus for one day; $5,000 from the New York Journal, provided $15,000 are raised, indicate faith in a plan which is something more than merely utopian.

It has been stated that so well has Mr. George established this little republic that his work is practically done there, and he could with propriety transfer himself to other regions, multiplying little republics all over the country. But his presence is surely an inspiration to these little people to whom he has greatly endeared himself and among whom he feels it best for the present to live.

As yet the republic is in a crude condition. They own about forty-nine acres of land. Most of this is for farming purposes. They have a few tents and slightly constructed buildings, which the children have dignified with the names "Delmonico's," "Sherry's," the "Waldorf," etc.—hotels which are managed solely by the children.

A most interesting feature of their life is the way in which they punish their offenders. They have a prison modeled after Sing Sing. Mr. George receives many letters containing the inquiry, "Are not the punishments meted out to the culprits too severe?" To which he invariably responds with a most emphatic "no." What are the nature of the crimes for which the boys are punished? Chiefly profanity, stealing and cruelty to animals. These cases are all tried in a court with a boy judge. When an act has been repeatedly indulged in, as in the case of one incorrigible who was twenty-nine times imprisoned, the verdict is three days with a diet of bread and water and a hard board to sleep upon. For most of the boys one or two experiences of that sort are sufficient to inculcate the lesson that obedience is demanded. Upon the release from prison of one boy he exclaimed to Mr. George, "Well, if Sing Sing is like that I don't intend to get there."

There is no pauper class to be dealt with, for if the children refuse to work they must starve. It has been satisfactorily noted that they invariably prefer to work. The whole field presents to the political economist such problems for study as arise and are suggested by a small area and a popula-

SECOND WAR WITH FRANCE.

The Grand Duchess and Some Newspaper Extracts.

The rapidity with which France was repairing the disasters of the war and the ease with which she met the financial obligations it imposed on her astonished Europe and perturbed the statesmen at Berlin, says the Quarterly Review. Her military force was being judiciously reconstructed and it seemed also as if the calculations of Prince Bismarck, as regards the constitution of her internal government, might be falsified The German chancellor desired to see established what a Russian diplomatist happily described as a republique dissolvante. Notwithstanding his efforts to bring this result about and the impracticable character of the Comte de Chambord, which rendered the restoration of monarchy for a time impossible, there were indications that a stable system of government would be founded, which would enable France to recover a strong position in the community of nations. Prince Bismarck was resolved this should not be, and suddenly, in May, 1875, Prince Hohenlohe, the present chancellor of the German empire, who was then ambassador in Paris, appeared at the French foreign office and asked for explanations regarding the scheme for the reconstruction of the French army. The Duc de Broglie, in his interesting account of the embassy of M. de Gontaut-Biron to Berlin, describes the consternation which followed the attempt to provoke another quarrel with France. Another war seemed inevitable. England and Russia interfered to prevent it. Prince Bismarck could easily have disregarded the remonstrances of both. England would certainly not take up arms so he paid no attention to her representations and Russia would have thought twice before incurring the hostility of Germany in view of coming events in the Balkan peninsula. The fact, though not generally known, is that the greatest influence in preventing war was that of the grand duke of Baden. While the relations with France were becoming complicated the Emperor William happened to be staying at the Mainau, the seat of the grand duke of Baden, on the Lake of Constance. One morning the grand duchess, who was the emperor's daughter, came into her father's study and showed him a number of extracts from the press. He perceived at once that the country was drifting into war, and, after a consultation with his son-in-law, who was strongly opposed to provoking a war which, however successful for the moment, would have been disastrous to the name and character of Germany, the aged monarch went off that very evening to Berlin and Prince Bismarck had to beat a retreat.

BRAKEMAN MARRIED.

E. J. Martin Takes Unto Himself a Bride.

A "Boarding Car" in a Work Train Destroyed—The Norfolk and Western Abolishes Some High Offices.

Last evening at 8 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Carrey, 294 East Creighton avenue, occurred the marriage of E. J. Martin and Miss Elida May Carrey, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. T. Loring, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. After the marriage ceremony, the bride, groom and guests sat down to one of the most delicious feasts it was ever their lot to participate in. The married couple received a great number of presents, all useful and very appropriate. Mr. Martin is a brakeman, employed on the western division of the Pittsburg road. He and his bride will for the present, at least, reside with the parents of the latter.

FREIGHT BUSINESS IMPROVING

The Pittsburg, the Wabash and the Grand Rapids officials each report an improvement in freight business. How long this improvement will continue is, of course, an uncertainty, but THE SENTINEL sincerely hopes it will be permanent. The Wabash had five eastbound and three westbound freights through this city last night, and the Pennsylvania had seven eastbound and three westbound trains during the night. This does not include the local freights. For a dull season this is considered good business When grain and coal are moving briskly it is not an uncommon thing for the Pittsburg to have twenty-eight or thirty trains over the road in one day.

DIDN'T USE MORPHINE.

A bottle of patent medicine figured conspicuously recently in a case wherein a Wabash engineer was charged with taking morphine pills while out on his run. The engineer and his fireman were not friendly and to "get even" for an imaginary wrong the latter had filed the above charge against the former. The next day the engineer was summoned before an official and charged with being addicted to the morphine habit. He declared he had never taken a dose of the drug in his life and asked who was his accuser. When told that it was the fireman, the engineer reached in his pocket and drew out a bottle of Munyon's Catarrh Cure, with the remark, "Those are the only morphine pills I ever use." The box of medicine was taken to the Peru hospital and analyzed by the company's physician, after which the engineer was exonorated.

It is stated that the citizens of Marion, Ohio, have offered the Erie people twenty five acres of ground and $100 000 in cash to make Marion, instead of Galion, the division terminal

The day is fast approaching when all railway employes will be uniformed The Chicago and Western Indiana has already adopted that rule and now all its switchmen, switch tenders, crossing men, grade crossing police, station men, ushers, baggage men, janitors and trainmen are neatly clothed in uniform

It is said that President Ingalls, of the Big Four lines, would like to drop the Peoria and Eastern, which was taken control of by the Big Four to put a check upon it, a rate cutting line and a general demoraliser of both passenger and freight rates. This he has succeeded in doing, but at an enormous expense.

The crew of a work train had an exciting time on the Grand Rapids road Wednesday morning While making a run to Kendallville to sidetrack for passenger train No 8, which was close behind it, the boarding car on the work train took fire and was soon a mass of flames. The engineer pulled open the throttle and fairly flew along the rails until Kendallville was reached There he cut the burning car out and sat it upon an isolated track, where it soon burned up.

The receivers of the Norfolk and Western, as an economical measure, abolished the general superintendent's position, the division superintendents' positions and the engineer of maintenance of way, and gave instructions that all communications intended for such officials should be sent to Joseph Sands, the general manager. One of the receivers, when criticized for such action, is quoted as saying that instead of discharging section men and letting the road run down physically it is better to dismiss high salaried officers.

FLIRTED AT COLLEGE

THE EARLY ROMANCE OF MR. BRYAN AND HIS WIFE.

His Attentions to Her Then Very Nearly Led to Her Expulsion From School—He Talked the President Over, However, and He Was Allowed to Visit Her.

There is a romance connected with the early acquaintance of William Jennings Bryan with Miss Mary Baird, now Mrs. Bryan, which has never been published. Only a few persons know the story. One of this number is a Topeka man, who relates it.

At the same time that Miss Baird was a student in the Jacksonville Female college at Jacksonville, Ills., young Bryan was attending the Illinois college at the same place. After a certain hour in the afternoon the young ladies of the college were free to promenade about the college grounds, and while enjoying this recreation took the opportunity to flirt with the boys from the Illinois college, who were invariably on hand.

It was during these promenades that Miss Baird attracted the attention of young Bryan and a flirtation was commenced. This led to an acquaintance, and a meeting was arranged at the home of a relative of the young lady, in the suburbs of Jacksonville. The first meeting was but the forerunner of a series of weekly visits by both parties to the same place.

But the enjoyment of the young couple was not allowed to proceed without interruption. The matter came to the ears of the president of the female college and he at once called Miss Baird to him and questioned her concerning it. She acknowledged that she had been in the habit of meeting young Bryan, and as such conduct was distinctly against the rules of the college her sentence was expulsion. She was ordered to be in readiness to leave the college at a certain date.

The news of Miss Baird's expulsion reached Bryan the same day and without waiting to map out any plans of procedure he hastened to the president's office. Young Bryan was even then the prize orator of the Illinois college, and he started in to convince the president that he had taken the wrong course and that the expulsion was unmerited.

A few days prior to this event Bryan had written the parents of Miss Baird asking their consent to visit the young lady. Although he had not received a reply, he presumed on an affirmative answer and told the president that he had the consent of the young lady's parents and that his intentions were entirely honorable. He also presumed upon the affections of the young lady and stated that their formal engagement was only a matter of a few weeks.

At the end of an hour young Bryan had the president of the college looking at the matter in an entirely different light. Not only was the sentence of expulsion repealed, but Bryan obtained consent to visit Miss Baird at the college weekly.

Although it was not until after the young couple had left their respective colleges that their engagement was announced, it was while at school that they became fast friends. Both graduated at the same time and a few years later they were married.—Kansas State Journal.

Government Saves Millions.

Judge Welborn of the United States circuit court, sitting at Los Angeles, has handed down a decision of great moment, involving the right of congress to regulate rates. The railroads claimed they had a right to charge the government the same rates as others for troops, mails, etc., while congress held that they should not exceed half of the regular rate.

A test case was brought, and the decision of Judge Welborn is a complete victory for the government. The importance of this decision may be understood when it is stated that the Atlantic and Pacific alone, which is plaintiff in the suit, would receive $750,000 a year more for the transportation of troops. The amount involved on all of the railroads aggregates from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year.

Adjournment till 1906.

Justice Ehmendorf of Hurley, Ulster county, N. Y., had a remarkable case before him recently. For some time past a trespass suit has been in progress before him and the lawyers were fighting every point.

The other day, when an amended answer was put into the complaint, time was asked to prepare an answer. The squire asked how long a time was desired.

"Ten years!" was the reply. Surprising as it may appear, the opposing lawyer agreed and the court announced:

"Then, be it understood, that this case is adjourned to Aug. 11, 1906, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, and members of the jury can depart hence, to appear again promptly at that time."

Alaska Loses Rich Placer Mines.

The richest gold placer mines of Alaska have been transferred to Canadian territory, and miners are now paying miners' tax to British authorities. The territory in question is from three to eight miles in width and embraces the rich placer claims on Glacier and Miller creeks, which heretofore were supposed to be in Alaska territory. The transfer of territory is the result of resurveys recently made.

Is Kipling a Plagiarist?

A North Carolina writer accuses Rudyard Kipling of plagiarism and apparently makes a clear case against him. We believe this is the first charge of the kind which has been made against Rudyard, and therefore we're disposed to dismiss him with a warning. Next time he'll have to pay costs.—Atlanta Constitution.

AWARDED $40,000 DAMAGES.

Child Given a Verdict Against the Iron Mountain Railroad.

Probably the largest judgment ever recovered against a railroad company in the state of Arkansas for personal injuries was the one rendered by a jury in Bradley county Monday in the case of Esther Warren against the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway company, which was for $10,000.

The plaintiff in the case was a small child which was run over and had both legs and both arms mangled by one of the company's trains.

Suit was brought by the parents of the injured child in the Ashley county circuit court for $113,000 damages, and the case was removed to Bradley county on a change of venue.

National Editorial Association.

The executive committee of the National Editorial association met at the Planters' House, St. Louis, the other evening, with President R. H. Thomas of Mechanicsburg, Pa., in the chair and transacted some routine business. It was decided to hold the next annual convention at Galveston Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 3, 4 and 5, 1897. One of the features of next year's convention will be a trip to Mexico, for which the railroads promise to furnish every possible comfort and convenience. The matter of establishing a home for writers was informally discussed. Some plan will be decided among the members of the committee before the convention meets, and a report will be submitted to that body to act upon.

TO HELP THE CUBANS.

DR. J. HERBERT STEVENS IS ORGANIZING ANOTHER EXPEDITION.

He Was Reported Dead—Will Take One Hundred Men to Fight—Women May Be Taken Also as Nurses—Large Steam Yacht Will Carry the Filibusters.

One of the largest, best equipped and most formidable expeditions for the aid and comfort of the Cuban insurgents is due to sail from New York in three weeks.

The vessel is a large, swift steam yacht. The cargo is rifles, cartridges, powder, dynamite, medicine and warlike supplies of every sort. The company will consist of 100 or more determined men versed in the arts of Cuban warfare, sworn to die if need be in defense of the single starred flag of Cuba libre. The commander of the expedition is Dr. J. Herbert Stevens, formerly of Rochester, N. H., later of Malden, Mass., and still later of Boston, who was reported to have been killed by a dynamite explosion in Cuba shortly after landing there six months ago, but who, for purposes that are now manifest, purposely spread the report.

The destination is some port in Cuba known only to the commander and his trusted lieutenants and those in this country who have the cause of Cuba most deeply at heart. So certain is the management of the expedition that there will be absolute safety for all that several women, among them the wife of Dr. Stevens, are considering the question of accompanying the expedition with the intention of becoming nurses in the permanent hospitals which are now being built in the mountain fastnesses of the insurgent country.

Hardly less impenetrable than the Cuban jungles was the wall of secrecy that had been built up about the temporary abiding place of Dr. Stevens, where, until recently, he had remained securely hidden at the home of his wife, five miles from Rochester, on a lonely country road. It was the apparent lack of solicitude on the part of the doctor's intimates regarding his death that caused a suspicion to be entertained that he was, after all, alive.

A representative of the New York World drove to the house of Dr. Stevens' father-in-law, Mr. Berry, and inquired for the missing man. His presence was strenuously denied and letters shown as testimony that the man was not there. The World man insisted, however, and at last Dr. Stevens, tired of seclusion, appeared to answer in his own person the question whether he was alive or dead. Worn with the work of his duties as a surgeon in the insurgent army, bronzed by continued exposure to the tropical sun and thin from the effects of malaria, he was scarcely recognizable as he appeared, clad in the uniform of an officer in the patriot army—a white coat, bare of all decorations save shoulder knots of yellow, and the narrow stripes on the seam of his military trousers. As he held out his hand in greeting he said:

"I did not suppose that a soul on earth outside of my family and the Cuban officers in New York knew of my whereabouts. I thought that every source of information had been closed, for my intention to come to this country at this time was kept secret from my nearest friends, and they were quite as surprised at my arrival as though I had risen from the dead."

The doctor said that after leaving this country in April he connected himself with the mail column of the insurgent forces and had since that time been in almost every battle that had taken place. He was provided with a horse, and, following the soldiers as they advanced for the contest, he did all his surgical work upon the field where the soldiers fell.

So thoroughly imbued is he with the spirit of the cause which he has espoused that he is anxious that his wife should accompany him on the return trip to Cuba. Should she decide to go, she will be installed on her arrival as the head matron of the hospital of which Dr. Stevens will probably have sole charge.

Dr. Stevens refused to give any details of the expedition he intended to head.—New York World.

WHEN'S AN EGG A CHICKEN?

Puzzling Question Brought Forward In a Lawsuit In Jersey City.

A novel story about eggs has been produced in Jersey City, which involves a suit and a question of law that perplexes Justice of the Peace Erwin. The question is whether eggs, after having existed in a state of incubation long enough to have reached an advanced stage in the process of segmentation, are eggs or chickens.

John Jobst about two weeks ago owned a snarly dog, a maternally inclined hen and 17 eggs, which had been guaranteed to contain the embryos of as many game chickens.

He valued the eggs at $15, the hen at $10 and the dog at $75. The dog bit a child, and, upon request of the child's mother, Justice Erwin ordered Constables Daly and Boland to kill the dog.

The constables went to Jobst's barn, in which the culprit had been locked, and, upon the owner's refusal to give up the keys, broke a door, which was not used, and behind which meditatively sat the hen upon the 17 valuable eggs. The surprised fowl flew from her nest, and the dog opened wide his mouth, so as to bark his loudest. Into this opening Constable Daly sent a lump of lead, which ended the animal's life.

The hen had witnessed the tragedy and refused to resume her former occupation. The eggs became chilled and spoiled.

Mr. Ryerson, for the defense, combatted the allegation of Jobst's lawyer that the eggs were chickens and that their value had increased 500 per cent by remaining under a hen 13 days.

Mr. Jobst interrupted the warm arguments of counsel by producing one of the eggs and making an offer to break and demonstrate in that way that it contained a chicken. To this there was a general demurrer, and Justice Erwin, fearing what might happen, hastily adjourned the court, reserving his decision.—New York Herald.

Women Can't Run For Office In Michigan.

Mrs. Lucy F. Moorehouse, who was nominated by the national Prohibitionist state convention for the office of superintendant of public instruction in Michigan, cannot run. The attorney general has filed an opinion in which he says that the office is one created by the constitution, and women are not eligible to hold the office any more than they would be that of governor. He holds that a woman cannot hold an office for which she cannot vote.

FOR THE CANNIBALS.

GHASTLY PRACTICES FOUNDED ON ANCIENT THEORY.

Eat Human Flesh to Gain Strength—Savages Who Believe That Courage and Other Valuable Qualities Come from the Practice.

THE story about cannibals in Africa, told by Captain Hinde at the meeting of the British association, says a writer in the Saturday Review, arouses sufficient interest to make the subject worth pursuing. He notices that his followers were in the habit of breaking the legs of their game several days before they killed them, in order to make the meat more tender. Inquiring as to their reasons, he was told that this was the result of experience with human flesh; that they always broke the legs and arms of their captives and then tied them up to their necks in a flowing stream, in such a way that they could neither fall asleep and drown nor commit suicide and that at the end of three days they could be killed with the assurance that they would be very tender eating. As the president of the geographical section remarked at the time, it is necessary to divest ourselves of all insular prejudices in treating of cannibalism. The idea of eating a part of a deceased human being with the object of acquiring some of his qualities and virtues is widespread and has been so from time immemorial. Such sacrificial or sacramental eating is common to most religions.

In Peru a figure made of dough is baked and eaten and the people talk of this as "eating the god." In certain parts of France a figure is made with the last of the harvest corn and eaten under the impression that it contains the spirit of fertility. This was the earliest form of cannibalism, and the very name of cannibal is derived from the Caribs, who used to devour their enemies with the idea of acquiring their courage. They were the bravest of the aborigines of South America and did not pursue the practice to supply themselves with food. They pretended they could distinguish the flavor of a Spaniard, an Englishman and a Frenchman. A French traveler who has written about them indulges the traditional vanity of his nation by declaring that the French flesh had far and away the superior flavor.

In some parts of England it is the custom, when a man is laid out, to bake what is called a corpse cake. This is put to rise near the fire on the dead body, and is supposed to absorb the virtues of the deceased. In the Balkan states a little baked image accompanies every funeral procession, and the mourners eat it afterward, exclaiming: "God rest him!" In Wales and Herefordshire there exists a regular paid functionary known as the "sin-eater." He is described as a "long, lean, lamentable rascal." On the breast of a corpse the relatives place bread and cheese and beer, which the "sin-eater" consumes, in order to appropriate the sins of the deceased. Formerly he received six-pence for his trouble, and took care to make himself scarce as soon as possible after his duties were performed, but of late years his price has risen to half a crown.

Cannibalism has been surprisingly little discussed in books of travel. We are told that in such and such a district cannibals are to be found, but we hear no details, neither how the flesh is prepared, what joints are preferred, nor to what extent the practice is prevalent. Captain Hinde asserts that nearly all the tribes in the Congo basin are or have been cannibals, and that the practice is on the increase, not merely for superstitious reasons, but also for the provision of food.

There is a certain sturdy, fat race in Africa which has never been famous for its prowess, but which is made a regular staple article of diet. Whole cargoes are constantly carried up the river and sold to the natives for food. Inquiries for a fresh supply of slaves will often be accompanied by the complaint that "meat is scarce just now."

The Batella are described as a fine race, with no old or infirm persons among them. The reason of this is not far to seek, for at the first sign of decrepitude the sufferer is killed and eaten, parents even being devoured by their own children. The members of this tribe consider human flesh the greatest of delicacies and are ever on the watch for any excuse to kill and eat their comrades. The fate of the individuals is decided by their king. So soon as a victim is appointed to die, mobs collect outside the king's house and the victim is given over to them alive, but does not long remain alive, for the people tear him to pieces as quickly as a pack of hounds will make an end of a hare. Each sets himself out to cut off his favorite tit-bit, and no one makes it his business to kill the victim first, lest a coveted piece should thereby be lost.

LI HUNG CHANG.

China's Statesman is Now Our Guest.

Arrives This Morning in New York Harbor

And Is Honored by a Grand Display of Warships and Commercial Craft.

New York, Aug. 28—Promptly at 8 o'clock this morning colors were hoisted on board the fleet of American warships at anchor off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, with the usual ceremonies, the band of the flagship New York playing the "Star Spangled Banner." Shortly afterwards the crews of all the ships were busily engaged in polishing and burnishing, oiling and cleaning, rigorously placing the finishing touches upon the fine naval display in all its glory in honor of Uncle Sam and preparatory to welcoming Li Hung Chang, the "Grand Old Man" of China, the statesman of many titles, in an appropriate manner.

Shortly after the announcement at 9 o'clock that the St. Louis was sighted east of Fire Island, throngs of people travelled across the ferries or by other routes to Fort Wadsworth, Fort Hamilton, Bay Ridge, Quarantine, Tompkinsville and other points from which the arrival and greeting of the distinguished guest of the nation could be witnessed to the best advantage. Other crowds flocked to the Battery and still others stationed themselves at an early hour in the vicinity of the American line dock, where the traveller was to land. It is doubtful if New York bay ever presented a grander sight than it did this morning, for, anchored there in stately strength, were eleven of the war ships of the new navy of the United States, the embodiment of grace and strength, of speed and offensive power.

The Chinese statesman at the review off Spithead, after he visited Queen Victoria, at Osborne, was treated to a fine display of warships, forty-seven ships, seventy-seven battleships and cruisers and twenty torpedo destroyers being there aligned for his inspection, but he never set eyes on a finer fleet than that commanded by Admiral Bunce today. Each vessel represented the very latest improvement in everything. This gallant fleet, swung in double column, an enclenon, to the flood tide at 10 o'clock, rams pointing seaward.

It was originally intended to take Li Hung Chang off the St. Louis at quarantine and convey him to some pier up town and nearer the Waldorf than the American line pier, which is down town, but the Chinese minister represented to General Ruger that the age of the Chinese statesman precluded any such feat of strength and agility as clambering from the St. Louis to the Dolphin, and so this feature of the program was abandoned.

On board the Dolphin with General Ruger were the Chinese Minister Yang and suite, the Chinese consul, a few specially invited guests and a representative of the Associated Press. It was decided to address the Chinese statesman as 'Your excellency," and so he will be officially termed during his stay in the United States.

Li Hung Chang's suite consists of about forty persons and he has with him about 300 pieces of baggage, some of them being of immense size. The sumptuous coffin which he carried with him as a matter of precaution, has been sent back to China, via the Suez canal, which would seem to show that the traveler has no fear of dying before reaching his native land again.

Coming next to the great Chinese statesman in rank, of the party visiting the United States, is Li King Fong, or Lord Li, the adopted son of Li Hung Chang, who has been secretary of the Chinese legation at London and minister to Japan. Then comes Lo Feng Luh, the principal interpreter, who was educated in England, and was chief of the naval school at Tien Tsin. After him in rank come the four secretaries, Yuh Shu Mei, Lien Chun King, Lin Ho Shu and Di King Sha, the second son of Li Hung Chang. The attaches are next in rank, they are Chung Lin, Huk Ki, Sieh Pang Ho, Pah Hin, Huong Ching, Lo Chung Sung and Hung Chai Siong. Also accompanying Li Hung Chang is Dr. Irwin, an English physician, Major Von Hanneken, of Chino Japanese war fame, and a force of valets, cooks, etc.

The Dolphin steamed down the bay, with General Ruger and the guests on board, shortly after 10 o'clock, and at 10:30 she dropped anchor off Quarantine, awaiting the arrival of the St. Louis.

The St. Louis arrived at Quarantine at 12:30 and was immediately boarded by the government welcoming officers from the cruiser Dolphin, who extended to the Chinese statesman, in behalf of President Cleveland, a welcome to the United States.

Chinatown was ready early today to celebrate the landing here of H. I. C. M.'s ambassador. Red, yellow and green bunting, disguised the houses, mean, dingy, gray brown tenements, into chrysts of lively, brilliant interest, while the Chinese of the quarter, dressed in their shimmering silks or bright hued cotton, stood in the doorways or on the fire escapes watching placidly the commotion in the streets. Their Chinese visitors from other parts of the town and other towns and villages hereabouts were scurrying hither and thither, seeking lodging or restaurant or paying calls.

The St. Louis slowly moved up the bay, surrounded by all kinds of gaily decorated craft and with the Dolphin quite near her, to the music of a tremendous chorus of steam whistles and continual fusilade of giant firecrackers, etc. As the St. Louis neared the American fleet, the first gun of the salute in honor of the Chinese visitor was fired from the flagship New York, gun by gun, until twenty one shots had been fired. The New York was the only warship to fire a salute, but the other ships dipped their colors as the St. Louis passed. They presented a magnificent appearance and were watched with the greatest interest by the Chinese embassador and his suite from the position which they occupied on the port side of the upper deck of the American liner.

At quarantine it was learned that Li Hung Chang stood the voyage remarkably well and had not been at all sea sick. The St. Louis moved up the harbor in a sort of triumphal procession, greeted on all sides with the tooting of steam whistles and other salutes and eventually reached her dock at 1:30 p. m. But the party was not able to land until some time later, owing to the necessary delay in warping the ship alongside of her wharf. The vicinity of the dock was about as lively as the finish line on a yacht race day and with the America's cup at stake. All kinds of craft were dashing here and there, in everybody's way, but escaping accident by a series of miracles.

The yellow standard of China was loudly cheered by the crowds about the wharf as the bow of the big steamship neared the landing place of the American line and the Chinese party was received at the pier by the guard of honor of the marine and infantry and the immense crowd of people, which was with difficulty kept back from the approaches by a large force of police. The Chinese standard was hauled down from the American line steamer at 1:50 p. m., as the Chinese ambassador landed on the wharf and entered the carriages in attendance. The first carriage contained the ambassador and General Ruger and in the next were Tao-Tai-Li, Major Von Hanneken and a member of the staff of General Ruger. In the third carriage was Lord Li and his wife, Loh-Fong-Loh and another staff officer.

After them came carriages containing the Chinese minister and the Chinese consul and their suite, accompanied by staff officers. The procession left the pier headed by a detachment of the Sixth cavalry and having another detachment of the same regiment in its rear, the whole was preceded by a detachment of mounted police, and it moved away amid loud cheering. The route was to West street and Bowling Green, up Broadway to Fourth street, thence through Washington square and up Fifth avenue to the Waldorf. The route of the procession was guarded by police and densely packed with spectators. A quantity of bunting was displayed on all sides and among it the Chinese standard was continuously seen.

A MOTHER'S CRIME.

And Then Turned the Weapon Upon Herself With Fatal Results.

Kansas City, Aug. 28.—Neighbors who broke into the home of C. W. Green, traveling passenger agent of the Big Four railway, this forenoon, found the three children, two boys, aged respectively thirteen and four years, and a girl, aged nine, lying dead in bed. They had been shot and instantly killed as they slept. In another part of the house Mrs. Green, also dead, lay upon the floor, weltering in her own blood. The woman had apparently fired and killed her children, then dispatched herself, using a revolver. Mrs. Green had apparently suddenly become crazed in the night and risen and committed the terrible crime. She is said to have been addicted to morphine. Mrs. Green was thirty-five years old. Mr. Green, who is the traveling passenger agent for this territory for the Big Four railroad, left the city a week ago last Tuesday for a trip to Salt Lake City with Mr. Lynch, assistant passenger agent of that road.

Prominent Valparaiso Republicans Declare for Bryan and Silver.

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 28.—A sensation was created in political circles today by the announcement that Loren Hixon, John McGillicuddy and James McGillicuddy, all prominent merchants, and Col. Adelbert Radker, Dr. D. J. Loring, Prof. William Hicks and Rev. Allen Lewis, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, all former republicans, of this city had declared for Bryan and free silver.

A STATE OF ANARCHY

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—Travelers who have arrived here from Constantinople say that the state of anarchy continues at the Turkish capital and that the number of persons massacred in the streets reach into the thousands.

CAMPAIGN TOUR.

Democratic Presidential Candidate Among the People.

W. J. Bryan Starts Out for a Few Days' Speaking Tour of Northern New York.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 28.—In his Syracuse speech Wm. J. Bryan explained his campaigning tour by remarking that because few of the people had enough money this year to visit a presidential candidate it seemed only fair that the candidate should go to see the people. In pursuance to this policy Mr. Bryan left Buffalo by trolley this morning to begin a two days' campaign among the smaller cities of northern New York.

At Tonawanda there were gathered 200 or 300 people when the car stopped in the center of the town and Mr and Mrs. Bryan, standing on the platform, shook hands with a typical country crowd. Mr. Bryan spoke to them briefly, his voice in its huskiness showing the wear and tear of the week's work, and when the trolley moved off it was followed by three cheers for the next president. Mr. Bryan spoke as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—The Chicago platform, while it was written and adopted by the democrats of the west and south, does not raise any sectional question. It simply reasserts the democracy first taught by Thomas Jefferson and afterwards defended by Andrew Jackson and the democracy upon which the democratic party must always stand, unless it decides to abandon the principles which have been its principles from the beginning and substitutes the plutocracy that some have called modern democracy.

The Chicago platform simply reiterates those fundamental principles upon which our form of government must rest. The keynote of the Chicago platform is found in the declaration of independence, that all men are created equal, and that, therefore, no citizens have the right to appropriate to themselves the blessings that the Creator intends for all the people of this country. Laws should not be made so that the many will and the few enjoy the fruits of the toil of the many. That platform means that every man shall be defended in the enjoyment of that which he earns, but that no man shall be permitted to enjoy what somebody else has earned and which is taken from him by vicious legislation.

The reason they use abusive epithets and apply hard names to those who support that platform is because they know that the platform is a menace to the wrong door, not the smaller wrong door only but also to the larger transgressor who attempts to use the government as his instrument to wrong others.

I do not think it is going to require a great deal of talking in this campaign. We are not going to have any difficulty to find speakers. If we go out in any of the stores, the machine shops, the farm or to the men who work along the road we will find the men who know enough about the principles of this government to be able to discuss these questions and apply them to themselves. The great common people do not need any particular class to tell them what they shall do. They can think for themselves, and I trust that when November comes they will act for themselves. [Great applause.]

During the morning ride Mr. Bryan gave to the Associated Press a statement of his views concerning the party outlook in the state of New York. Coming after his recent visits with Senator Hill, State Chairman Binley, and minor party men in the largest cities of the state, all of which he has visited, the statement may be considered significant. Mr. Bryan said: "I am more than gratified with the demonstration of last evening. It far surpassed anything which I had expected. I am also pleased to find so unanimous a sentiment in favor of the endorsement of the action of the Chicago convention. From what I have seen in New York and from the sentiments expressed by members of the state organization, I am satisfied that the state convention will endorse the platform as well as the ticket. Some of the democrats may oppose parts of the platform, but it is the national platform and will be accepted as a whole."

During the brief stop in Niagara the Bryan party was taken on a special car of the Gorge railroad to Lewiston, a distance of several miles down the river. The road is built under the cliff on the American side and runs close by the rapids, commanding a fine view of the falls. Mr and Mrs. Bryan stood on the front platform and at Lewiston shook hands with a small party. After ascending the tower for a view of the falls they boarded a car for Nowelsville, near Medina, to speak at the farmers picnic.

FALL FROM A WHEEL.

Miss Laura Bay, a Teacher at Terre Haute, Dies From Injuries.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 28.—Miss Laura Bay, a teacher in the city schools, was killed by taking a header from her bicycle. She was found bleeding and unconscious at the foot of a hill and died soon afterward. She was on her way to visit her parents, who live just over the Illinois line.

WOMEN CAMPAIGN CLUB.

Fair Sex of Noblesville, Will March for McKinley.

Noblesville, Ind., Aug. 28.—The women, married and single, of Noblesville have perfected the organization of a McKinley and Hobart club, with a membership of thirty-six. A novel feature of the organization is the equipment of a marching club, which will actively participate in all the rallies of the campaign in La Grange county. In addition to taking part in public demonstrations, a number of the fair sex who are endowed with oratorical talent will conduct a school house canvass in behalf of the republican leaders.

CRISIS PAST.

Affairs in Zanzibar Assuming Normal Conditions.

Usurper Said Khalid Still Under Germans Protection, But He Will Be Surrendered.

Zanzibar, Aug. 28.—The crisis here is regarded as ended. The new sultan, Hamoud Bin Mohammed Bin Said, is expected to follow the peaceful lines of his predecessor and it is understood that Great Britain does not intend to make any change in the existing form of government. The suggestion that the presence of the suppressed usurper, Said Khalid, at the German consulate, implies a political intrigue, is not credited here, and it is expected that Khalid will be handed over to the British officials as soon as the German consul receives the necessary instructions from Berlin.

TILLMAN'S CHALLENGE.

Wants to Meet General Harrison in Debate.

Leaves the Choice of Place to the Ex-President, But Prefers Indianapolis.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, has telegraphed to ex President Harrison at New York, challenging him to a joint debate. The dispatch was sent from here this morning as the senator passed through at 11 o'clock from Pennsylvania to his home. The dispatch is as follows:

"Hon. Benjamin Harrison, New York City:

"I have just spent a week in Pennsylvania, speaking to many thousands. Your speech in New York last night attacked me specifically and I would be pleased to meet you in joint debate before a northern audience, preferably at Indianapolis. B. R. Tillman."

CALLING ON THE MAJOR.

Chicago, Cleveland and Columbus Will Send Delegations.

Canton, Ohio, Aug. 28.—Tomorrow promises to be one of the busiest days yet for McKinley. Five delegates are scheduled to arrive here during the day. The first delegation will be the commercial men from Chicago, who will be received about 10:30 a. m. Then will come the supreme lodge Knights of Pythias, from Cleveland, followed by the Lasbon, Ohio, farmers, and later by the German-American citizens from Cleveland, a large delegation, and the Workingmen's McKinley club, from Columbus, Ohio.

A committee of fifteen from the National Republican league reached here at 1:30 this afternoon from Milwaukee. They took dinner with Private Secretary Boyle, and will call on Major McKinley at 2:30 this afternoon, when John Goodenough, of Minnesota, will make a formal presentation. Tuesday next the editors of West Virginia will call. Major McKinley's deluge of telegrams of congratulations over his letter of acceptance continues unabated, while huge mail bags bring thousands of letters of the same nature. Six delegations will arrive tomorrow instead of five, as previously reported. The sixth delegation being the United Brethren church Ohio conference.

IRISH POLITICAL PRISONER.

Dr. Thomas Gallagher, of New York, Is Released.

London, Aug. 28.—Dr. Thomas Gallagher, of New York, the Irish political prisoner, was released from Portland prison this morning in charge of an infirmary nurse. Tickets were taken for Waterloo railroad station, London, but it is believed that they will stop at Southampton, as it is understood that the United States embassy has booked a passage for Dr. Gallagher on the American line steamship St. Paul, which sails for New York tomorrow. Dr. Gallagher looked very pale and thin, was extremely weak and his hair has turned gray.

WANTS MORE TIME.

Walling's Attorneys Petition for an Extension.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug 28.—George Washington, the attorney for Walling, filed a petition with the clerk of the court of appeals this morning for the extension of sixty days time for submitting a transcript. The time expires September 3 and Judge Helm is in Michigan. Judge Hazelrigg will probably grant the extension.

Congressional Nominees.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 28.—Ross L. Hammond has been nominated for congress by the republicans of the third Nebraska district at Columbus. W. H. Robb for congress by populists and democratic fusion forces in the eighth congressional district. Frank Bailes for congress in the fourth Iowa district by the democrats.

Strike Ended.

San Francisco, Aug. 28.—The great New Castle coal strike is ended. The decision of the strikers, according to Australian mail advices received by steamer, was reached on July 12 when a majority of the lodges decided to accept the master's terms. The miners appear to have submitted to the inevitable and at last accounts work was being resumed.

ARENA OF POLITICS

J. M. Robinson Endorsed by the Populists.

Republican Convention Held Tomorrow.

Interesting Contests for the Nominations—Meetings Held by the Democrats and Republicans.

The populists of this congressional district met in convention at Auburn yesterday and indorsed as their candidate for congress J. M. Robinson, of this city, the democratic nominee, who was nominated in April by the democratic congressional convention, which assembled at Kendallville, for the same position.

The Auburn convention was attended by populists from the different counties in the district. W. F. Francis, of DeKalb county, was made chairman, and H. H. Haines, of this city, selected as secretary.

After the transaction of the usual preliminary business, the convention took up the question of the nomination of a candidate for congress. There were two candidates, J. M. Robinson and C. F. Shonts, of this city, and the ballot resulted: Robinson, 71, Shonts, 25, and, on motion of Mr. Shonts, the nomination of Mr Robinson was made unanimous.

A committee, of which Messrs. Kelley and Shonts are members, was appointed to notify Mr. Robinson of his nomination and to ask him to endorse the financial plank of the St. Louis populist convention. Before the adjournment of the convention the following resolution was presented and unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, By the Twelfth district people's party congressional convention, that justice to the people's party of Indiana makes it imperatively necessary that the democratic party of Indiana should place upon the democratic electoral ticket sufficient Bryan and Watson electors to give the people's party a fair proportion of the electors in accordance with the vote cast as compared with the democratic vote of the state in the election of 1894."

The convention selected the chairman and secretary of the convention to act, respectively, in that capacity for the district organization.

Republican Convention Tomorrow.

The republican county convention which assembles in this city tomorrow to nominate candidates for the various county offices will meet at Princes rink at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Unlike the usual republican county conventions of Allen, the one tomorrow promises to have a little of the spirit which characterize the conventions of the democrats. There will be quite a contest for the nominations for the offices of sheriff, treasurer and prosecuting attorney. The Sentinel has already given the names of the candidates for each of these offices. There are two for prosecuting attorney and five for sheriff. There are also two candidates for treasurer, W. T. Jefferies, formerly city clerk, and A. R. McCurdy, of DeWald & Co. These contests will be animated, as the candidates have been hard at work at the task of building up their political fences.

McKinley Club Formed.

A meeting was held at Anderson's hall, in the Fifth ward, last evening for the purpose of organizing a McKinley ward club. The new organization starts out with a membership of nearly one hundred, and the following officers were elected: President, Col. C. R. Oakley; first vice president, J. W. Sale, second vice president, C. W. Orr; secretary, S. M. Holtzman; treasurer, P. L. Potter; executive committee, Henry Hild, J. O. Brown, A. T. Lukens. Mr. Lukens was instructed to organize a Fifth ward glee club and regular meetings will be held each Thursday evening at places to be announced hereafter. On concluding the business Col. R. S. Robertson and Mr. Straus delivered addresses.

Democratic Meeting.

An enthusiastic democratic meeting was held last night at Cosmo and it was largely attended. Speeches were delivered by Henry Colerick, W. H. Shaninaugh, and J. H. Powers, of this city. Over 100 persons from Columbia City attended. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Garrison, who has been a life long republican.

Will Go to Toledo.

Quite a large number of democrats from this city will go to Toledo next Wednesday to hear Wm. J. Bryan, the democratic candidate for president, who speaks there in the evening. The Wabash will run a special train, leaving this city at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and starting on its return trip at 11 o'clock.

STEEL BILLET POOL.

It Holds Its Second Monthly Meeting at Cresson.

Pittsburg, Aug 28.—The meeting of the steel billet pool, otherwise the American Pessemer association, which was scheduled for this city was suddenly changed to Cresson and it is now in session there. The reason for the change is said to be the desire to avoid the importunities of the metal brokers for certain changes. As this is the first month that the pool has been in actual operation the meeting is regarded as important. Considerable have open hearth steel has been sold by members of the pool at prices lower than the pool price of bessemer, and it is said that prices for bessemer open hearth will be fixed, which will be higher than for bessemer steel. The allotment basis will also be changed from billets to ingots. While several members favor lower prices, no reduction is expected.

SHUMAN'S CASE.

Defendant Appears With His Attorney for Trial.

Prosecuting Witness Sick and Case Continued—A Wayward Girl—Police Notes.

The preliminary trial of Frank Shuman was set for this morning, but owing to the sickness of A. D. Craig, the prosecuting witness, the case was postponed indefinitely.

Young Shuman appeared in court with his attorney, J. H. Harper, and will probably fight the case.

The charge against Shuman is that of receiving stolen goods, a watch owned by A. D. Craig having been pawned there, after notice had been served upon him not to receive the same.

SCRAMBLING FOR FOOD.

The Victims of the Ontonagon Fire Act Badly.

Make a Rush Upon the Provisions and Clothing and Nothing a Call for Troops Necessary.

Ricklang, Mich., Aug. 28.—More or less trouble has been experienced at Ontonagon, Mich., over the distribution of provisions, clothing, etc., and it is reported that the sheriff has asked the governor of Michigan to place at his disposal a company of troops in order to quell any further outbreaks. It is not believed, however, that there will be anything like a riot. There are still about 1,000 of the distressed people who are in need of aid. The remains of Mrs. Pick were removed from the ruins last evening. It is not believed that more than three or four perished in the fire.

HOUSES RANSACKED

Many Valuable Goods Are Stolen

Gang of Professional Thieves Operating in This City.

Residence of William Orrock Robbed of Many Costly Articles—Trust Bumper's House Entered.

Two residences were broken into by burglars last night and the work was that of professionals. A very complete job was accomplished at the residence of William Orrock, 106 Calhoun street, which leaves no traces of amateur thievery. It is plainly the methodical raid of the most dangerous class of household thieves.

William Orrock is a traveling lumber merchant whose business takes him out of the city a good deal of the time. He was absent yesterday. Late yesterday afternoon Mrs. Orrock and children went to visit her mother, Mrs. Bond, and did not return home until this morning. Upon entering the house, Mrs. Orrock made the discovery that burglars had been at work during her absence, ransacking the rooms upstairs and down and leaving the house in such a state of confusion that it will take weeks to restore it to a normal state of order.

Many valuable articles were stolen, among them a gold watch, an old fashioned silver watch, a 38 calibre revolver, a solid gold Caledonian medal and $6 in money. Mrs. Orrock had taken with her all other cash there was in the house and thus frustrated the chief plans of the thieves, as it was evident that they were after money above anything else. Many valuable goods, such as silverware and ornaments, were left behind.

The extent of the loss is not known and will not be until Mr. Orrock's return home tomorrow.

ANOTHER ONE.

The residence of Ernst C. Kampe, at 18 Union street, was entered by burglars last night, and, although the house was ransacked, no articles of value have yet been missed.

The thieves were probably frightened away. Several suspicious characters have been seen on the west side the past few nights and a detective has been detailed to investigate and arrest parties seen loitering about.

She left some months ago for Vevay Park to visit her uncle, then being in the full enjoyment of health. A few weeks ago she was stricken with typhoid fever which terminated fatally last night.

The remains will be brought home for interment.

Captain J. B. White, a gentleman and an ardent admirer of Scotland's rights is displeased to find fault with American newspapers in general and Fort Wayne papers in particular for the misuse of the word England when Great Britain is meant. Several years ago the North American United Caledonian association held its meeting in Chicago, and among other resolutions adopted was one calling the attention of the press to the practice. The Caledonia Mercury said, while it may be an international, any reference to Great Britain by using the word England was an insult to the Scotch people whose country formed no inconsiderable part of Great Britain. These resolutions were printed in circular form and The Sentinel acknowledges the receipt of a copy, together with a note from Captain White calling attention to the matter.

JOHN B. RYAN.

He Wasn't Robbed But He Thought He Was.

When Deputy Sheriff John B. Ryan got out of bed this morning and found his vest missing, he thought he had been robbed of his watch and a roll of money. He was looking around all morning among the pawn dealers for his watch, but about noon he received a telephone message from home saying that his vest was found in the wardrobe, with money and watch safe. His little sister in gathering up her clothes from the floor had unintentionally wrapped up John's vest in them and thrown the whole bundle into the wardrobe.
